CHIANG KAI-SHEK TRAPS NIPPONESE

Three Regiments Under Japan's 'Lawrence of Manchuria' Encircled.

CANTON, China, May 30.—(Monday).—(UP)—With more than 1,000 already dead and at least 3,000 injured as a result of Japanese aerial bombing, Canton was terrorized again today when 20 Japanese warplanes raided the South China seaport for the third time within 48 hours.

The attacking planes this morning apparently concentrated on government buildings north of the central part of the city.

Patriotic Bodyguard Slays His Master

SHANGHAI, May 29.—(AP)—The Chinese bodyguard of a prominent Chinese lawyer killed his master and a fellow bodyguard today and then committed suicide in a crowded street in the heart of the International Settlement.

Police said his motive was intense patriotism. The slain lawyer was Yui Hu-chieh. He was walking down a street with his two-man bodyguard when one suddenly shot and killed him, the other bodyguard and turned his weapon on himself.

Police were informed the assassin had vowed to "punish" his master for accepting a post with the Nanking reformed government.

tional casualties and damage were not obtainable.

Huge areas of the densely populated city were in smoldering ruins from the two previous attacks.

Just before noon yesterday 21 bombers flew over the panic-stricken city in the second raid and dropped 60 bombs on the thickly packed Chinese sections, killing between 300 and 500 civilians and injuring more than 1,000.

CHIANG DIRECTS REJUVENATED DRIVE

SHANGHAI, May 30.—(Monday).—(AP)—Three regiments of the famous Japanese 14th division under Lieutenant General Kenji Doihara, Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria," were reported today to have been encircled by Chinese northwest of Lanfang.

With the encirclement completed as in sanguinary fighting as any in the undeclared war, the Chinese hoped to block the drive on Chengchow, junction of the east-west Lushan and north-south Peiping-Hankow railways or levy a terrible price for that approach to Hankow.

Entrenched in three villages northwest of Lanfang and well within 100 miles of the railway junction where they planned to wheel south for assault on the provisional Chinese capital, the

Atlanta Girl Seeks New World to Conquer

Betty Glenn (right), her mother (center), Mrs. W. H. Bohannon (left), English teacher at Druid Hills school, smiled their anticipation of an enjoyable trip as they entered for Washington last night. Betty, winner of The Constitution-National Spelling Bee in Georgia, was not nervous a bit as the train pulled out—taking her to stiff spelling competition in the national capital.

Schuschnigg Sped 'North' By Gestapo

Sweetheart Trails Nazi Secret Police to Unknown Destination.

VIENNA, May 29.—(AP)—Eyes witnesses reported today that German secret police had spirited Kurt Schuschnigg, deposed Austrian chancellor, out of Vienna's Belvedere castle to "somewhere north."

These reports said the journey began at 8 p. m. yesterday with Schuschnigg in one of three closed automobiles manned by the Gestapo.

A half hour later, Schuschnigg's blonde fiancée, 34-year-old Countess Vera Fugger von Babenhhausen, and his father, a retired Austrian officer, also set out northward with luggage packed in two cars.

All police had been removed from the castle today and neighbors said the home which Schuschnigg had occupied as chancellor before the March 13 Anschluss must be emptied by next Tuesday.

In Bad Health

No official statement was available but some Nazi officials expressed the private opinion that the 40-year-old Schuschnigg might have to face trial before the Leipzig supreme court.

Others, however, believed Schuschnigg's health was too impaired for imprisonment at Leipzig penitentiary and that therefore he might be permitted to live under heavy guard in a German sanatorium.

Another source reasoned that Schuschnigg's removal was necessitated by numerous letters in some of which his critics threatened to "lynch him" while in others friends assured Schuschnigg they would attempt to free him in the near future.

Firm Pays Workers Bonus of $36,000

LOUISIANA, Mo., May 29.—(AP)—Bonus checks totaling $36,000 were distributed yesterday to the 700 employees of the Stark Brothers Orchard and Nurseries Company, accompanied by notes explaining a "substantial increase" in business made the payments possible. The bonus, a company announcement said, was based on wages paid during the past six months. The company had paid $23,000 in bonuses during the 1937 Christmas holidays.

SPELLING CHAMP OFF FOR CAPITAL

Betty Glenn, 13, Will Vie With Winners From Other States in Contest.

Undismayed at the prospect of facing keen competition in the National Spelling Bee, Georgia's entry in the contest, Miss Betty Glenn, 13, winner of The Constitution-sponsored state championship, left Atlanta last night for Washington.

Betty, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. A. C. Glenn, of 2137 Ponce de Leon avenue, Decatur, and Mrs. W. H. Bohannon, her English teacher at Druid Hills school, talked mainly about the Washington monument.

"I was in Washington two years ago," she said, "The monument was being repaired, and I didn't get a chance to go to the top. That's the first place I'm going to when I get a spare minute."

As for gaining the top in the National Spelling Bee, in which expert spellers from all over the country will participate, Betty merely smiled and said "she will do her best."

A number of friends and relatives were at Terminal station when the Atlantics left at 7:10 o'clock. Betty won her right to enter the national contest three weeks ago when she conquered 28 opponents in the state finals at O'Keefe Junior High school.

Participation in the Washington contest makes her eligible to share in $1,750 in prizes.

Nine American Leaders Honored At Oglethorpe Commencement

By LUKE GREENE.
Nine of America's notables representing five fields of achievement became sons of Oglethorpe University last night at the 19th annual graduation exercises of the Atlanta institution. Degrees also were conferred upon 69 students.

In accepting their honorary degrees, the nine distinguished men praised the principles and ideals for which the university stands. Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president, delivered the diplomas.

After receiving his diploma, each notable made a brief address. Those honored were:

Robert Whitehall Burns, pastor of the Peachtree Christian Church of Atlanta, doctor of divinity. Presented to receive his degree by Rabbi David Marx, Dr. Burns

CZECHS ARREST 75 AS RIOTING FLARES DURING BALLOTING

Nazi and German Socialists Injured in Clash Near Frontier; Elections Generally Are Peaceful.

HENLEINISTS GAIN, AS DO COMMUNISTS

Famous Pittsburgh Agreement From America Taken to Ruzomberok.

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, May 29.—(AP)—Nazi followers of Konrad Henlein and German Socialists rioted today at Eibenberg, near Graslitz, in Czechoslovakia's troubled border region.

A Henleinist was injured seriously and three Socialists were wounded slightly before order could be restored with the arrest of 75 rioters.

This was the only serious disorder reported on the second Sunday of voting in communal elections which have been regarded as a test of Nazi political strength among Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 German minority.

Henlein Gains.

Incomplete returns showed Henlein's Sudeten German party, demanding self-government, was overwhelmingly victorious in the predominantly German districts. Pro-government parties were stronger than ever in Czech districts and Communists registered some formidable gains partly at the expense of Socialists.

In 89 predominantly German communities, Henlein's party won 1,897 seats in local parliaments, German Socialists (anti-Nazi) 185, German Communists 160, German Democrats 20 and the United Czech parties 250.

Another Ballot June 12.

Citizens of 2,740 communities voted today. Communities which have not yet voted will ballot June 12, to complete the election covering the entire nation.

Disorders on the eve of last Sunday's elections brought an ominous rumbling in the German press and German troop movements toward the frontier—movements which Berlin insisted were merely routine.

Bring Pittsburgh Pact.

A delegation of 100 American Slovaks observed elections in 22 communities of Slovakia, the eastern part of the nation. Bringing the famous Pittsburgh agreement from America, the delegation arrived at Ruzomberok (Rosenburg) yesterday to visit the Rev. Andrej Hlinka, aged leader of the Slovakian autonomy movement.

(The agreement, signed in Pittsburgh June 30, 1918, embodied an accord among Czech and Slovak societies in the United States on the principle that Czechoslovakia should grant "cultural self-government" to Slovaks.)

Atlanta To Honor Nation's War Dead

United States post offices will close at noon today as Atlanta joins the nation in paying honor to America's war dead.

Postmaster Lon Livingston said two morning mail deliveries will be made in the business section, but no deliveries will be made in residential districts. Regular parcel post deliveries and collections will be made, however.

Veteran and patriotic organizations will pay tribute to fallen heroes at ceremonies at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the National cemetery at Marietta. The 22nd infantry band from Fort McPherson, under leadership of Warrant Officer J. H. Belardi, will furnish music.

CAMP CONSIDERS SENATORIAL RACE

U. S. Attorney Is Staunch Supporter of Roosevelt; Parker Seeks Return.

The name of Lawrence Camp, United States attorney for the northern Georgia district and staunch Roosevelt supporter, was injected into the Georgia political picture last night as observers speculated on possibilities of the New Deal issue being projected more clearly into the senatorial race. Camp acknowledged that he was considering suggestions that he qualify, now that Governor Rivers is in the lists to succeed himself, but said he had reached no decision.

The Governor's announcement Saturday night that he would seek renomination in the September 14 primary, to complete his "little New Deal" program, made certain a gubernatorial race based largely on Rooseveltian policies as they have been applied in Georgia by Rivers.

Three in Race.

Hugh Howell, erstwhile lieutenant to former Governor Talmadge, long who has been listed as a foe of most of the President's doctrines as well as a critic of Rivers' application of them in Georgia, was joined by John J. Mangham as a gubernatorial candidate yesterday. Mangham has not disclosed his platform in detail, but the Bremen businessman has indicated dissatisfaction with much of the Rivers program.

While Rivers' entry in the governorship battle clarified the issues there, his decision not to enter the senatorial fray left that race without a strongly pro-Roosevelt contestant.

The incumbent, Walter F. Murphy, is expected to be re-elected.

Race Flyer Hits Bay At 350 M.P.H.

Plane Buried So Deeply in Mud It Takes Hour To Extricate Body.

OAKLAND, AIRPORT, OAKLAND, Cal., May 29.—(UP)—A plane piloted by Gus Gotsch, 40, Hollywood racing flyer, crashed into San Francisco bay at 350 miles per hour today during a Pacific international race contest.

The plane plunged to the bottom, where it was buried so deeply in the mud it could not be immediately located.

The accident occurred during the 100-mile feature of the Pacific international air races. Gotsch came to the shore-side pylon too fast to make the turn, spun out of control and struck the water a half-mile offshore.

Coast guard crash boats and an amphibian plane went out immediately. Gotsch's body was recovered an hour later but the plane remained buried in the mud.

Gotsch's death was the second of the air meet which opened yesterday. Ralph Johnson, 46, Los Angeles, crashed on the first day in his Waco cabin plane in which he had been doing barrel rolls at a low altitude.

Tony Le Vier, Monticello, Cal., in a Schoenfeldt special, won today's race easily with an average speed of 251.01 miles per hour over the closed course. Art Chester, Los Angeles, was second, and Marion McKee, Los Angeles, third.

R. G. Chambers, Los Angeles, crashed in landing after finishing fourth and smashed his landing gear. He was slightly injured.

S. J. Wittman, Oshkosh, Wis., was forced down on land near the airport and cracked up his plane.

Mike Murphy, Kokomo (Ind.) stunt flyer, also escaped uninjured when his Taylor Cub monoplane, in which he takes off and lands on the top of an automobile, was wrecked.

Heat-Crazed Hippopotami Attack Africa Colonists, Destroy Property

PARIS, May 29.—(UP)—Rampaging elephants and hippopotami, crazed by an unusual drought and heat wave in the heart of Africa, have attacked colonists and destroyed property on French plantations in the vicinity of Lake Chad (Chad territory) in French equatorial Africa) according to official dispatches reaching the ministry of colonies.

Natives have begun a gigantic drive to chase the animals back into the uninhabited veldt after the hippos had stamped up rice fields and attacked native canoes on Lake Chad near Djimtillo. One native was stamped to death, according to the reports, when he attempted to chase a herd of 12 elephants poaching in his gardens near Fort Lamy. The elephants were driven from their customary haunts when the Shari and Logone rivers dried up during the drought.

DISCOVERY MADE OFF LONG ISLAND; TAG BEARS NAME

Head, Feet and One Arm Missing; Edgar Hoover Leads G-Men in Search for the Murderers.

AUTOPSY PLANNED ON DEATH CAUSE

Police Reconstruction Is That Boy Was Trussed, Weighted and Dumped.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., May 29.—(UP)—The body of 12-year-old Peter Levine, who was hunted for three months in one of the nation's major unsolved kidnaping mysteries, was found tonight awash on a rocky shore near here, the torso trussed with wire and the head, feet and one arm missing.

Police identified the body from remnants of clothing, including a faded blue sweater and a red windbreaker. A tag bearing the boy's name was attached to a garment.

Federal Bureau of Investigation men, headed by their chief, J. Edgar Hoover, immediately took charge in an effort to track down the killers. The question whether the boy actually had been kidnaped had not been settled definitely until tonight.

"Clear Case of Murder." District Attorney Walter A. Ferris, after viewing the body, said to reporters:

"It's a clear case of murder." Ferris said the body apparently had been bound with copper wire and thrown into Long Island sound. From the condition of the headless torso it was evident it had been in the water a long time.

It was not possible, he said, to determine how long the body had been in the water or whether the head, both feet, one arm and a part of the other hand, which were missing, had been severed by the boy's attacker or lost through decomposition.

To Perform Autopsies.

The body was taken to a morgue and an analysis will be made of the vital organs, to determine if possible the cause of death, according to Dr. Amos O. Squire, Westchester county medical examiner.

Dr. Squire said the body "may have been in the water for weeks, or even for months." "It was badly decomposed," he said. "It is not possible to say whether the head was removed before or after it was thrown into the water, but I have never heard of water decomposing the ligaments holding the head so that it would sever the head."

He said that it would require several days to analyze the vital organs to determine what might have caused death, other than drowning.

The body was found floating in the water shortly before dusk, in an employe of Mrs. Louis Iselin.

FRENCH ARTILLERY AIDING LOYALISTS, FASCISTS CHARGE

Claiming Teruel Success, Insurgents Report 'Real' Gunners With Foes.

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), May 29.—(P)—Heavy insurgent assaults on the inland extremity of the Teruel-to-the-sea line shattered Spanish government defenses today, giving the attackers a firm foothold on the road to the coast and Valencia.

An insurgent column, marching five miles south from Teruel, took possession of the village of Aldehuela, then wheeled to the east against government forces clinging to mountainous positions near Puerto Escandon.

Insurgents said the week-old offensive both at Tremp and Balaguer had been futile despite the efficiency of the attackers' artillery. The insurgents declared the artillerymen were French, commanded by French officers.

It was estimated 40,000 shells were fired last week at the insurgent-held crossing of the Segre. A new type of projectile, of 105-millimeter (4.13-inch) caliber, marked as of French manufacture, was reported used.

Insurgent Aragonese infantrymen, defending the bridgehead, used 3,000 bottles of gasoline to repulse repeated tank attacks, dashing the bottles on the tanks and then putting torches to them. Forty-two tanks were reported disabled in that fashion.

General Alvaro Suro, one of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's commanders on the middle Catalan front, said:

"The enemy has artillery which is evidently new and even remarkable. They also have gunners who are real technicians and who know how to fire quickly and well."

BARCELONA BOMBED BY LONE SEAPLANE

BARCELONA, May 29.—(P)—Four air raid alarms between 11 p. m. yesterday and noon today sent Barcelona residents scurrying for shelter but the city was only bombed twice with little damage and no reported casualties.

A single seaplane brought the first alarm at 11:04 p. m. with an attack on this provisional government capital and San Adrián de Besos, just to the north.

VALENCIA EVACUATION IS ORDERED

VALENCIA, Spain, May 29.—(P)—Civil authorities ordered forced evacuation of all refugees from Valencia's crowded port section today because of continued insurgent air raids.

college fraternities take in those men who already have been "socialized" rather than those who have been deprived of social opportunities. He declared that the opportunities of tomorrow will be in the social fields and predicted the south is on the verge of a new era.

Charles J. Haden, Atlanta economist, doctor of public service:

"We are just beginning in the south. One misapprehension is widespread in the human mind—that for climatic reasons this deep south is doomed forever. In the light of racial progress. The great achievements of the human race have not been in the frigid zones or the upper temperate zones, but in the subtropics. Those who look into the future realize that we are destined to have the greatest land of the future."

Frank R. Kent, vice president of the Baltimore Sun and well-known columnist, doctor of letters:

"Politics is the most interesting and worthwhile game in the world. I can't understand those people who are constantly arguing that politics is dirty. If there is any one thing that concerns us more vitally than politics, I don't know what it is."

"There are those business and professional men who have drifted into the sorry habit of assuming that to be a successful politician one must be crooked. I do not think politicians compare unfavorably with other lines of endeavor."

"The newspapers and the opposition party exert a great influence in keeping politicians straight." He said there are few candidates for public office who are fair entirely with their voters, but expressed the opinion that the man who told everything about himself would have little chance of success.

Taking issue with statements that newspapers are inaccurate, he pointed out that in no other business or profession is there a greater motive for accuracy largely because of the penalty for inaccuracy.

John Oliver LaGrove, vice president of the National Geographic Society, doctor of science:

Tracing the history of the National Geographic Society, he said it has grown from 60 members at the time of its organization to its present membership of 1,200,000, of which 7,000 are in Georgia. He explained that its principal purpose is to translate science into a language that can be understood.

James B. Murphy, director of the division of cancer research of Rockefeller Institute, of New York, doctor of science:

"There is a distinct value in sectionalism. The south should make no apologies for being called provincial, for after all, is not provincialism individuality?"

David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, doctor of commercial science:

"The unpredictability of human beings is something we should be proud of and something we should preserve. There are countries where individuals are converted into test tubes. The principal concern in the land of dictators is not the preservation of individuality, but rather the suppression of individuality."

J. Robert Rubin, vice president and general counsel of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, doctor of laws:

Outlining the development of the motion picture industry, he said the honorary degree conferred by Oglethorpe University was the first official recognition of the academic world to the new industry. He said 70 per cent of the moving pictures are produced in America and added that 220,000,000 movie visits the movie houses in America weekly.

James Adams Colby, chairman of the board of directors of Roger Williams College, Providence, R. I., doctor of laws, who by order of his physician, was forbidden to make an address.

Other features on the graduation program included music by Oglethorpe Glee Club, a reading by Rubin, and prayer by Dr. Burns.

Degrees were awarded as follows:

The degree of bachelor of arts in the School of Education, presented by Dean H. J. Gaertner: Mrs. Conway Hulse, Dottie Dial Johnson, Bertha McCurdy, Ruby Pool, Helen Nunn, Robert Knight, Kinsey R. Stewart, Margaret Stipe, Ruth Odessa Tanner, Loren Peruch Thomas, Katharine Patterson, Edna E. ## ATLANTA FIREMEN ARE PAID TRIBUTE

'Good Men,' Chief Parker Praises Five Who Died Last Year.

Firemen and friends and relatives of five fire-fighters who died last year gathered yesterday afternoon in the Druid Hills Baptist church to pay tribute to "good men, good firemen and good citizens," in the words of Chief O. J. Parker.

The men on the department for whom Chief Mechanic, J. T. Medlin, answered "absent" were Assistant Chief William Butler, who died recently; Captain C. C. Carter, a department veteran; W. E. Benson, former fire inspector, and George Clark, fireman.

Dr. Louis D. Newton, who preached the sermon, declared that "firemen constitute the greatest peace-time army today in America, watching over the lives and property of citizens—in storm and fair weather; night and day."

"These men risk their lives for us day after day and few of us think to remember them for it," he added.

He recalled incidents of bravery on the part of firemen, both in Atlanta and the nation.

CAMP CONSIDERS SENATORIAL RACE

George, has supported many of the President's policies but never has been listed among the ardent New Dealers and recently has voted and worked vigorously against some of the key White House measures.

The only other qualified senatorial candidate, former Governor Talmadge, has been identified as a political foe of Roosevelt for years although so far in his campaign he has not been stressing this opposition, but rather has been attacking the senior senator as a "friend of big business."

White House Blessing.

This lack of an outright Roosevelt standard bearer has stirred persistent rumors that someone with the White House blessing—express or implied—might enter the race before the lists close on Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the state legislative picture began to assume final form as qualifying deadlines passed or neared in many Georgia counties.

John C. Parker, speaker pro tempore of the house of representatives who is recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident several weeks ago, announced his candidacy for one of Colquitt county's two seats in the legislature.

John T. Barlow, who served in the house the last session, also is asking another term.

Phillips Asks Re-election.

Other recent announcements include: Gainesville—Representative William J. Phillips announced his candidacy to succeed himself from Hall county.

Fort Valley—J. E. Davidson, of Fort Valley, announced for representative from Peach county. He will oppose A. Melrose Lamar, Fort Valley attorney.

Lafayette—Representative J. A. Sartain announced for re-election from Walker county.

Rome—Jack Rogers, young Rome attorney, and Tom Stone, Rome barber, qualified to seek the post held by Representative H. H. Keel, who announced he would not be a candidate for re-election.

Washington—Earle Norman, Washington attorney, announced his candidacy for the senate from the fifth district, comprised of Clarke, Oglethorpe and Wilkes counties. Wade H. Griffith, farmer and former Wilkes county legislator, previously announced for the post.

Thomaston—W. M. New, a member of Governor Rivers' staff, announced for state senate, and Alton Harvey said he would seek re-election to the house of representatives.

MYSTERY REMAINS IN LEVINE TRAGEDY

Recovery of Body Recalls Other Famous Kidnaping Cases.

NEW YORK, May 29.—(P)—Twelve-year-old Peter Levine was returned tonight from the limbo of the "missing" but, though his body was found, his disappearance of three months, along with those of two others reported missing in the metropolitan area in the past year, remained a mystery.

Mr. Alice Parsons, 38-year-old matron who vanished from her cottage at Stony Brook, Long Island, last June 9, and Arthur Fried, 32-year-old business executive who disappeared from White Plains, have not been found—either dead or alive.

Young Levine's fate was similar to that of Charles Mattson, a youngster near his own age, who was abducted from his home across the continent in Tacoma, Wash., in December nearly two and a half years ago. Two weeks after the kidnaping, the Mattson boy's nude and battered body was found lying in the snow.

Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. also was found slain, two and a half months after he was taken in 1932 from his famous father's Sourland Mountain home in New Jersey.

The kidnaping of 4-year-old Charles Ross, of Germantown, Pa., in 1934 was the first of a series of notable child-abductions preceding the Levine boy's abduction.

Other children kidnaped since then have included: Edward Cudahy, 15, Omaha, Neb., 1900, returned; Bill Gayley, 4, New York, 1917, never found; Bobby Franks, Chicago, 1924, slain; Marian Parker, 12, Los Angeles, 1927, slain; Grace Budd, 10, New York, 1928, slain; Marian McLean, 6, Cincinnati, 1931, slain, and George W. Hatcher, 9, Tacoma, Wash., 1935, returned.

Deeply shaken by the news—which ended a desperate hope, to which he clung since the boy disappeared on the afternoon of February 24, that his son might still be alive—Levine told newspapermen over the telephone that he had "nothing to say just now."

"I do not want to say anything until I have talked with police officials and others," he said, and hung up the receiver.

Meanwhile Reed Vetterli, head of the New York offices of the FBI, who left New York with Hoover immediately after receiving word that the body was found, inquired of the police and took active charge of the case.

Biggest Since Mattson. Federal agents and police of a dozen states have been searching for the boy and his supposed abductors in the nation's biggest kidnapping case since the Mattson boy, 10-year-old Charles Mattson, of Tacoma, Wash., two and a half years ago. The Mattson boy's body was found in a snow-covered grave.

Two New Rochelle detectives, who examined the body, said the sweater was that of young Levine and the other clothes were identified from police descriptions as those he wore the day he disappeared.

Vetterli said there was "no question" but what kidnaping was involved in the Levine boy's disappearance. Asked whether the discovery of the body had given rise to any new clue to the identity of the kidnapers, he said:

"No comment."

Fourteen federal agents were in New Rochelle tonight, working on the case. In addition, New Rochelle police, in charge of Lieutenant George Rifenberger, co-operated in the investigation.

Police Reconstruction. Police believed the kidnaper, or kidnappers, had taken the boy out into Long Island Sound, probably shortly after he was "snatched," wired a weight around his body and dumped it overboard. It was pointed out the weight may have held the body on the bottom of the sound, possibly becoming detached through decomposition of the body which would have permitted the body to rise to the surface.

Captain Halmer Strong, in charge of a small fleet of boats owned by Mrs. Iselin, first sighted the body through binoculars, floating in the water near a breakwater which is just out from the shore of the Iselin estate.

Strong headed his boat for the place where the body was floating, between the rocks and the shore, and pulled it out of the water.

The body was clothed in a blue sweater, with patched elbows, and a windbreaker of red cloth with a zipper in front. On the left side of the windbreaker was an insignia, an Indian head with the letters "C. W." inscribed.

Police said the insignia was of Camp Wigwam, Maine, where the Levine boy was enrolled one summer.

Note Asked $60,000. The father told police shortly after his son disappeared on the afternoon of February 24 that a ransom note demanding $60,000 had been received from the supposed kidnappers of the boy.

No trace of the kidnappers ever was found, however, in spite of the father's frantic effort to establish a contact with them by newspaper advertising and radio.

Several persons were taken into custody by police here and in New York city and New Jersey, but no announcement was ever made as to whether police established the disappearance as a kidnaping case.

Federal Department of Investigation agents took over the case after Levine failed to obtain an answer to his offer of $30,000 ransom, and last month a reward of $25,000 was posted for the return of the boy alive, and $5,000 for his body.

Reward Deadline June 15. Levine had set June 15 as a deadline for paying the reward.

Boys fishing near the spot where the body was recovered today had reported three weeks ago that they had sighted a body. A woman motor-boating in the sound at that time said her craft had struck a body. Police were unable to find a trace of the body, however.

The boy was last seen by a playmate who left the Albert Leonard Junior High school with him at about 3 p. m. February 24. The boy, Eugene Billik, said Peter borrowed a dime from him and walked

Major Developments In Peter Levine Case

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., May 29.—(P)—Important dates in the disappearance of 12-year-old Peter Levine:

February 24—Disappears on way home from school.

February 28—His father, Murray Levine, receives first ransom note, demanding $60,000; makes two appeals to kidnappers to "open negotiations."

March 2—Father receives note in son's handwriting urging payment of ransom.

March 4—Father says $30,000, demanded in "latest" ransom note, is ready.

March 14—Federal Bureau of Investigation issues police circulars on case, marking the federal government's entrance.

March 19—First of several persons arrested for attempted extortion of ransom money.

March 31—Rabbi Abraham Nowak announced as family's intermediary. Levine reveals unsuccessful attempt to pay ransom was made March 1.

April 20—Levine offers $25,000 reward for information leading to his son's recovery and $5,000 for information revealing his body if dead.

May 29—Peter's body found washed ashore on Long Island.

at Davenport Neck on Glen island, off New Rochelle.

The boy's father, Murray Levine, a New York lawyer, who had offered $25,000 for the return of his son, was notified by police that the body had been found. Mr. and Mrs. Levine were away from home when the body was found.

Deeply shaken by the news—which ended a desperate hope, to which he clung since the boy disappeared on the afternoon of February 24, that his son might still be alive—Levine told newspapermen over the telephone that he had "nothing to say just now."

"I do not want to say anything until I have talked with police officials and others," he said, and hung up the receiver.

Meanwhile Reed Vetterli, head of the New York offices of the FBI, who left New York with Hoover immediately after receiving word that the body was found, inquired of the police and took active charge of the case.

THREE BILLS IN WAY OF ADJOURNMENT

Pay, Relief Measures Promise To Provide Most Trouble in Congress.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(P)—Congress will begin next week the sixth month of its present session with three major pieces of legislation standing in the way of adjournment.

They are the wage-hour, spending and deficiency appropriation bills.

The first two promise to provide the most trouble. Leaders expect no delay in enactment of the latter, though it will carry one of the largest deficiency appropriations in recent years. They are not willing to predict, however, when agreement can be reached on the others.

Neither the senate nor house will meet tomorrow, Memorial Day. The senate will resume discussion Tuesday—under a self-imposed debate limitation—of the $3,000,000,000 relief-public works bill. This measure was before it all last week.

Administration leaders were hopeful that a week would be enough to start on the job of writing wage and hour legislation. This will be undertaken by a joint committee of senators and representatives, who will seek to compose differences in the bills passed by the two houses.

The house will have little to do while waiting for its appropriations committee to submit the deficiency bill. Committee members predicted the measure would not be ready for a week or so. The bill is expected to provide some $300,000,000 with which to pay expenditures authorized by congress in previously enacted legislation.

Unseen Bandit Robs Woman At Gun Point

An Atlanta woman obeyed an unseen bandit's commanding voice last night and fled from her home.

The woman, Mrs. Mary A. Sewell, of 339 Capitol Avenue, S. W., was walking toward Decatur street under the Piedmont avenue underpass when a metallic object was poked into her back.

"Don't scream or look around. Drop what you have in your hand,"

Mrs. Sewell obeyed. A handkerchief, with the cash knotted in an end, fell to the street.

"Walk ahead. Don't run or scream or look around. Just keep on going," ordered the bandit.

Looking straight ahead, Mrs. Sewell walked into police headquarters and reported the holdup.

GERMANS THREATEN TO MARCH ON BUND

League for Culture Will Lead 2,000 Against West Coast Meeting.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29.—(P)—Pacific coast German-American Bund members assembled here today for their first convention in the face of picketing threats by aroused anti-Nazi organizations.

The German-American League for Culture, more than 50 patriotic, civic and fraternal organizations planned to march 2,000 strong on the convention hall tonight where the first meeting of the two-day convocation was scheduled to be held (at 10 p. m. eastern standard time).

Uniformed and plainclothes men were ordered by police officials to be present to prevent any disorders.

"Peaceful, mass picketing" of California Hall, traditional meeting place of German groups, was planned, Eric Rix, secretary of the League for Culture, announced.

Henry Lage, president of the San Francisco bund unit, who yesterday lost his job as a carpenter because of membership in the organization, made threats with the statement, "we are prepared for any trouble that may arise."

CLOUDBURST FAILS TO END PROCESSION OF CATHOLIC GREAT

500,000 Hear Pope's Speech in Closing Day of Eucharistic Congress.

BUDAPEST, May 29.—(P)—Thousands of singing pilgrims marched through drenching rain today in a final procession ending the 34th Eucharistic congress after listening to Pope Pius' broadcast of a peace message and blessing.

The cloudburst prevented delivery of speeches by Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, vatican secretary of state, and Pope Pius' representative at the congress, and Justinian George, Cardinal Serdi of Hungary.

The Cardinals were to speak in Heroes Square where earlier an estimated 50,000 worshippers heard the Pope's broadcast from Castel Gandolfo, Italy.

The brilliantly garbed procession wound through the streets from St. Stephens basilica to the square with thousands of school children, peasants, churchmen and statesmen in the line of march.

The rain broke suddenly to the accompaniment of rolling thunder which at times drowned out the hymns of the miles-long column.

Hungarian Premier Bela Imred's gold-braided captain's uniform was soon drenched. Rain cascaded off his steel helmet.

Madame Nicholas Horthy, wife of Hungary's regent, kept her place in the line, her blue costume sagging under the downpour.

Three men labored to keep aloft the giant cross they were carrying.

Members of the house of Hapsburg marched side by side with peasants. Maimed war veterans propelled their mobile invalid chairs over the slippery streets.

Cardinal Serdi's prepared address which he was unable to deliver said:

"I beg you when you leave this land never forget us in your prayers as we shall never forget you. Let us say to the Eucharistic Jesus that we remain eternally faithful to Him."

Cardinal Pacelli's prepared address concluded that human misery was caused by "lack of food for the soul and spiritual anemia."

"A moral anemia is poisoning the whole world," his text said.

Thousands knelt earlier for the blessing from Pope Pius, a great roar of applause swelled from the gathering at the conclusion of his broadcast.

It brought to a climax the events and colorful ceremonies of the congress which was opened last Wednesday by the papal legate, Cardinal Pacelli, before the huge open-air altar in the square.

Pope Pius, speaking in Latin, prayed that the Redeemer "dispel lowering clouds which seem to portend new tempests."

The address later was translated into Hungarian.

Wait All Night. Thousands of peasants in picturesque costumes took up positions in the square last night to await the event.

The pilgrims were joined early today by the Hungarian aristocracy in medieval attire, jeweled bells and swords, by cabinet ministers, army officers, diplomats and high churchmen.

Pope Pius' broadcast was preceded by a solemn pontifical mass celebrated by Cardinal Pacelli.

The procession to the high altar included 14 cardinals, 37 archbishops and 196 bishops. There were 300 clerics in white, 600 in red and several thousands of priests.

The capital's hundreds of churches were unable to cope with the throngs wishing to attend morning mass as thousands of peasants brought here from the provinces by scores of special trains walked the worshippers.

MORE SLUM FUNDS URGED BY THOMAS

Additional $500,000,000 Is Asked; Holt Charges Projects Too Costly.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(P)—Senator Thomas, Democrat, Utah, urged an additional $500,000,000 appropriation for slum clearance and low rent housing tonight and Senator Holt, Democrat, West Virginia, criticized the cost of projects already built in the government's housing program.

The senators spoke over a radio (Mutual) network.

Holt, who frequently has opposed administration legislation, said he was not hostile to the housing program, but desired to see it succeed.

"The point that I desire to make," he said, "is that our government housing program is costing too much. The few are getting the benefit instead of the many. Is it not time for us to see if there is not a more economic approach?"

He asserted housing projects of the Public Works Administration had cost $169 a room, or $4,126 for a family dwelling unit, exclusive of the cost of sewage and utility connections. Units of the Arthur Dale, Va., homestead project cost an average of $15,343, he said.

Thomas urged that congress enact pending amendments to the Wagner-Steagall housing act which would allow a $500,000,000 expansion of the slum-clearance program and permit the housing administration to put up the entire capital for housing projects.

He estimated this would give employment to 600,000 workers directly and indirectly. Elimination of the present requirement of participating cities advance 10 per cent of the capital cost would speed up the program, Thomas said.

TAVERN OPERATOR SHOT NEAR GRIFFIN

GRIFFIN, Ga., May 29.—(P)—Desk Sergeant W. P. Williams, of the Griffin police department, shot today a man listed as George Ellis Clark, tavern operator, had been shot five times and killed in a quarrel last night.

Sergeant Williams said Clark's wife was taken into custody as her husband's slayer but was released after investigation. Williams asserted witnesses questioned by Sheriff H. T. McWilliams said Clark had attempted to beat his wife. The shooting followed. The police officer added no charges had been placed against the woman.

Clark had operated a tavern on the Atlanta highway, a short distance north of Griffin, for about a year. He was formerly a resident of Phenix City, Ala.

Past Presidents Honored by Bible Class

These former presidents and officers of the H. Warner Hill Bible Class of St. Mark Methodist church were honored at special services yesterday by members of the class. The ceremony marked the first official Past Presidents' Day. Left to right, bottom to top, are Dr. Ben T. Carter, H. W. Dent, present president; Charles Marshall, Thomas Howell Scott, Robert S. Quinn, first secretary of the class; Charles F. Hoke, John A. Streyer, George E. Knott, Hiram C. Blair, Charles F. Taliaferro, W. Grover Lamb, Albert I. Armstrong, J. Vernon Yost, H. V. Fitzpatrick, Orvis A. Roberts and Starbuck Jones.

14 Ex-Presidents Attend Services Unfolding Hill Class Success Story

All of Former Heads Are Present at Special Program Except Three, One of Whom, W. Henry Smith, Is Dead; 'Proxies' Represent Two.

The success story of the H. Warner Hill Bible Class of St. Mark Methodist church was unfolded yesterday as members of the class honored 14 former presidents at special services.

When the class was organized in 1920, it had 20 members; today it is one of Atlanta's largest Sunday school classes with a membership of near 400.

Sixteen past presidents were present or represented at the ceremonies yesterday. Only one of the 17 chairs which lined the Sunday school rostrum was empty. It was left vacant in honor of the late W. Henry Smith, the only one of the class presidents who is dead. His picture sat on a table in front of the other officers, and during the services the audience stood in silent prayer as a tribute to the beloved leader. All of the other 16 were present except two—Harry M. Houser, of Miami, Fla., the first president; and Melville A. Jamison, 1932-33. They attended "by proxy."

In outlining the class history, Robert S. Quinn, the first secretary, recalled that the group was originally known as the Men's Bible Class, but when Judge H. Warner Hill died in 1934 the name was changed in his honor.

He explained that soon after its organization the class was divided into 12 teams to promote a spirit of rivalry. Membership grew until within a few years the roll had grown to 250. Later the class was divided into Sections A and B, a system which is still used today. C. F. Spangh heads Section A and E. S. Walker, Section B. A class supper will be held at the church at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night as the climax to an attendance contest between the two groups.

Introduced by H. W. Dent, present head of the class, each of the former presidents made short talks.

In addition to Dent, current officer of the class, first vice president, Harold Carthers, second vice president, J. B. Bankston, treasurer.

The 16 former presidents are Houser, 1920-21; Dr. Ben T. Carter, 1921-22; Thomas Howell Scott, 1922-23; Charles M. Marshall, 1923-24; Charles F. Hoke, 1924-25; John A. Streyer, of Dothan, Ala., 1925-26; George E. Knott, of Marietta, 1926-27; Hiram C. Blair, 1927-28; W. Grover Lamb, 1928-29; Charles Taliaferro, 1930-31; J. Vernon Yost, 1931-32; Jamison, 1932-33; Albert I. Armstrong, 1933-34; Starbuck Jones, 1934-35; Orvis A. Roberts, 1935-36, and H. V. Fitzpatrick, 1936-37.

CZECHS ARE WARNED TO HALT VIOLATIONS

Continued Trouble Is Bound To Exhaust Our Patience,' Says Goebbels.

DESSAU, Germany, May 29.—(P)—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels today told a huge party demonstration Germany "holds peace as necessary as it does bread" but warned against further violations of the German frontier by Czechoslovakians.

It was the first public statement on the troubled German-Czechoslovak situation by a high Nazi official.

"What should we say to continuing border violations by Czech warplanes?" asked Goebbels. "In the end isn't one of them bound to exhaust our patience?"

"We are 75,000,000 strong. Czechoslovakia is 12,000,000. 13,000,000, yet she acts as though the situation was just the reverse."

"If one is a supporter of peace today then he should not everlastingly protest against Germany but call Praha to order for once, if you please."

"But the friends of peace do not do that. On the contrary they support Praha and her uncompromising attitude."

The party rally preceded dedication in Adolf Hitler's presence of the new "Dessauer theater," which Nazis hailed as the first "monumental" new theater of National Socialist Germany.

NAZI OPPOSITION ABSORBED IN DANZIG. FREE CITY OF DANZIG, May 29.—(P)—Nazi Leader Albert Forster told a party rally at near-Zoppot today that the Nazi party had absorbed the last remaining opposition in Danzig's parliament, leaving 70 Nazis and two Poles in the chamber.

Forster added that during the present season on the Zoppot Strand, a sea resort, Jews would be separated from other guests by a fence and that they would be accommodated only by designated hotels.

WHEELER ASSAILS TACTICS OF PARTY

Says Democrats Will Lose Presidency Unless F. D. R. Quits Primary Siding.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(P)—The administration received a warning today from Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, that the Democratic party would lose the presidency "in 1940 unless Roosevelt leaders quit taking sides in the party's primary contests."

Wheeler, who led the Democratic revolt which beat President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill last year, declared Harry Hopkins' intervention in the Iowa primary had widened the breach between party factions. He added in an interview:

"If these government officials are going to continue to inject themselves into primaries between Democrats it can result in only one thing—the splitting up of the Democratic party and the possible defeat of Democratic candidates in November."

Creating Schism. "The administration endorsement of primary candidates is creating a schism in the party which, unless it is healed, will not only affect the 1938 election, but will likewise affect the presidential election in 1940."

Wheeler asserted that administration intervention in primary contests "undoubtedly will tend to help very materially a third party, such as that which has been inaugurated by Governor La Follette (of Wisconsin)."

"It could develop into a question of whether there will be a third party candidate or an Old Guard Republican coming into power in 1940," he added.

Court Plan Held Test. The Montana Democrat's previous criticism of Hopkins, the WPA administrator, for endorsing Representative Wearin for the Iowa Democratic senatorial nomination, touched off a series of charges in the senate last week administration dominated WPA that politics dominated WPA.

Gillette has gone along with the administration on much major legislation, but he opposed the court reorganization bill.

"A man's stand on the court bill seems to be the only real test of whether the administration will support or oppose him," Wheeler asserted.

The senate's week-long political debate, centering on Hopkins' intervention in Iowa, has tended to drive many of the middle-of-the-road Democrats into either pro or anti-administration camps, Wheeler said.

Other senators agreed with Wheeler's statement that the administration was making support for the court bill the test of whether candidates should receive administration support.

In addition to Gillette, these anti-court Democrats are up for re-nomination to the senate this year: V. V. Clark, of Indiana, who is running as an independent; Clark, of Missouri; Smith, of South Carolina; McCarran, of Nevada; George, of Georgia, and Tydings, of Maryland.

GILLETTE BACK HOME FOR SENATE FIGHT. DES MOINES, Iowa, May 28.—(P)—Senator Guy M. Gillette, who became a national political storm-center overnight when WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins endorsed his opponent, Congressman Otha Wearin, was back in Iowa tonight to take his campaign for re-nomination to the people.

Senator Gillette disputed Wearin's claim to White House support, asserting at the same time that "if the people of Iowa want a rubber stamp and nothing else, they can buy one for 50 cents—they don't need to spend $10,000 a year to send a man to congress."

Wearin has been waging his campaign on a "support the President" platform. Gillette said tonight that "the national head of a labor organization" told him that "up until July 13, which marked the end of the supreme court fight, a larger number of votes was cast by Congressmen than by administration officials."

Wearin said that was cast by me."

SEPARATE TRIALS SET IN TRUST CASE. U. S. Will Bring Auto Corporations to Court One at Time.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., May 29.—(UP)—United States District Attorney James R. Fleming said tonight the government would hold three separate trials of automobile corporations, affiliates and executives accused of violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Fleming said each of the trials would cover one defendant group—Ford Motor Company, Chrysler Corporation or General Motors Corporation. The government will decide within the next month which group is to be tried first.

About 100 witnesses from "all parts of the country will testify at each trial," Fleming said. The trials will start in October unless present plans are changed.

Walter P. Chrysler, president of Chrysler Corporation, is ill and most of the Chrysler defendants are not expected to appear before next week to post bond.

"Some of the defendants probably will enter pleas when they appear to post bond, others will plead later," Fleming said.

The three 2,500-word indictments accused the defendants of conspiracy in connection with the financing of wholesale and retail automobiles.

STRANGLING ECONOMIC INFLUENCES

One school of extreme American thought has become particularly vociferous lately in airing one of its top-sided economic theories. The latest outburst is predicated on the pseudo moral ground that inasmuch as the "debtor" moral ground from the last war, to use their phrase, haven't paid up, no military supplies of any kind should be sold them until they do. Naturally, this includes raw materials such as cotton, oil, grain and steel, etc., as well as manufactured goods such as explosives, airplanes, motor vehicles and guns.

No group, it seems, experiences difficulty in finding a willing political mouth-piece to expound its theories. In this case, Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, Illinois Democrat, is their man. So the introduction of another resolution in the senate of the United States further to hamstring the nation's business should occasion no great surprise.

Without doubt the main reason why regular payments on the old debts were discontinued was because of diminishing world trade due to high tariffs. On top of the American barrier stands the Johnson law. It forbids the sale in the United States of all securities, good and bad indiscriminately, of foreign governments which are in default on their old war debts. Now, to enforce a resumption of payments it is proposed by Senator Lewis to add to the restrictions which brought about the original defaulting.

Thus, the nation is to lace itself even tighter in its economic strait-jacket by refusing to do legitimate business. It is already in the untenable position of the creditor who deliberately bleeds himself slowly to death by refusing to lend when lending is the very thing that will help to keep him alive.

When has it ever been good business to refuse to sell to an old customer, if he can pay cash, on the ground that he owes an old debt? In private industry, profits on the new business would not only eventually liquidate the old debt, but would keep the customer in business as a source of future profits. Such a practice has always been considered preferable to forcing bankruptcy with loss of loans, new profits and the customer as well.

A rigid enforcement of the present policies and laws, plus Senator Lewis' proposal, will choke off all foreign trade. "Buy American" is a pretty theory, but when put into practice it simply means the Japanese buy Japanese, Canadians buy Canadian, British buy British and so on down the line to absurdity and ruin. In the meantime, it should be noted, cotton, by the millions of bales, will lie stagnated in American warehouses.

It is not unreasonable to presume that good foreign loans, bond issues, could be safely sold in this country under the supervision of the Security Exchange Commission. An investigation would indicate that the largest defaulters on war debts are not the countries whose bonds are in default. Such loans could be floated to the mutual advantage of borrower and lender. The money would be spent here. Goods purchased would be shipped out of the country. Trade would be stimulated. Surplus would be reduced. Men put to work.

Germany, one of the world's trouble-makers, is not affected by the Johnson law. As a nation they owe us no money. Nothing stands between them and an American bond issue except the SEC. Recently, an application for permission to float a loan was made. It was approved, but later temporarily held up on technical grounds which will doubtless be straightened out. Thus, the weak-sister of world finance can borrow American money. Britain, the strong man of international finance, is barred.

The same "school of thought" which is so insistent on raising additional barriers to foreign trade, blandly advocates the printing of $40,000,000,000 of paper money to retire all outstanding United States bonds. It would not only save interest on the bonds, it is contended, but would put tremendous sums into circulation. Nobody has ever doubted it would, but shoes would probably cost about $500 per pair in this kind of money. This is merely cited as an indication of what can happen when important national questions are settled by this particular school of thought.

The time has arrived when the American people should decide, one way or the other, on the course to be followed with reference to foreign war debts, loans and trade. How much longer is opinion on these vital world questions to be influenced by such loose thinking? Shall the debts continue to go unpaid; shall they, to all intents and purposes, remain forever cancelled, because we refuse to do business with the debtors? Or shall tariff walls be lowered, thereby, in the opinion of many, jeopardizing American industry, but stimulating foreign trade which is the only possible manner in which the debts can be paid? They are payable in gold. The debtors have no gold. America has the gold.

If a new scaling down of the amounts due, or even outright cancellation, will strike a new balance in world affairs, thereby returning nations to normal intercourse, then it stands to reason it should be done. If the debts are responsible for the world's economic disorders, as many economists believe, then why flounder indefinitely in the mire of depression and despair? Instead of raising additional restrictions, those that now hamper normal trade relations should be removed.

CHIPS FROM THE POTATO WAR

Although the century-old economic war between the states is getting to be a serious business, it is not without its occasional amusing aspects. Many of the southern states have been developing industrially at a rate gratifying to the south despite the unfair handicaps to be overcome. Nothing within the bounds of legality has been left undone by political leaders in the north and midwest seriously to discourage and retard this progress.

Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York city, on a recent visit to Texas, approached the delicate question in a manner befitting a seasoned diplomat. If Texas continued to edge into the industrial field, he threatened good naturedly, New York would retaliate by growing potatoes! Except for the fact that New York, not Texas, is already one of the nation's largest potato-growing states, the mayor's threat would have taken on serious proportions. It outranks Texas 27,830,000 bushels to 3,011,730, according to the latest figures.

Paradoxically, the point in Mr. LaGuardia's joke hits the south in a manner totally different from that intended. Texas, the nation's greatest agricultural state, produces only one-half bushel of potatoes per capita, although consumption is three bushels. What's true in Texas is true in Georgia and other southern states. Hundreds of carloads of potatoes are shipped into Atlanta annually from distant states, Maine, Idaho, New York and Indiana, although potatoes as fine as ever produced are grown in Georgia.

So, not only does Georgia and the entire south pay tribute to the industrial north because of the high tariff, but contribute largely to the support of northern and midwestern agriculture. The blame for the latter condition, however, rests squarely on the south. If there ever was a time when it should be remedied it is now.

For their own economic salvation the people of Georgia should insist upon organization of distributing and transportation agencies to encourage and insure the maximum growing and marketing of products native to the state. Much has been done to bring this about, but the ground has scarcely been scratched. Vastly greater organization and co-operation of all concerned is needed if the state is ever to overcome its unnecessary dependence on other states.

The real point in Mayor LaGuardia's joke is entirely too sharp to be laughed off.

THE CHACO STALEMATE

Despite the pleas of President Roosevelt and the chief executives of five South American republics, little hope can be advanced for an immediate peaceful settlement of the Chaco controversy between Bolivia and Paraguay. The Chaco peace conference, in Buenos Aires, has tendered a final proposal to the two nations. The American representative, Spruille Braden, made the finality of the proposal unmistakably clear to the countries involved.

The settlement proposal, as others made previously, is not expected to prove acceptable to either government, since it includes a division of the territory over which the two countries have fought for nearly 100 years and staged a bloody war from 1932 to 1935. Today an armed truce exists, which threatens at any moment to break again into warfare.

The land at stake is practically worthless, comprising as it does mostly jungle and swamp areas. For Bolivia, however, the territory would provide an outlet to the sea through a river system connection to the Parana river and the River Plata to the sea. With Paraguay in control of the territory, Bolivia becomes landlocked.

Under the terms of the peace protocol the dispute would be carried to the Permanent Court of International Justice at The Hague upon the abandonment of efforts by the peace conference. However, both countries have been reinforcing their Chaco armies and apparently are preparing for a resumption of hostilities. The temper of the people of the lands is such that President German Busch, of Bolivia, and Dr. Felix Palva, provisional president of Paraguay, have little chance of avoiding internal trouble in the event of an unpopular peace treaty.

Editorial of the Day

WAR GAMES REVEAL DEFECTS

(From the Detroit Free Press.)
The war games staged by the army air corps around New York last week are reported to have revealed two serious weaknesses in the aerial defense of our coastal cities.

One of these is the lack of planes. The bulk of the army's aerial defense equipment now available in continental United States is said to consist of some 300 combat planes, when the present organization calls for 700.

And some of these planes were grounded before the maneuvers began, while others were omitted because of their obsolescence.

The second weakness discovered was the army's unfamiliarity with handling large masses of planes under conditions of simulated warfare.

The army air corps is much more effective today, as the war games showed, than it was a few years ago, but it appears to have still a long way to go before it would be able to hold up its end, along with the navy, which is stronger in the air today, against a powerful enemy attack upon the great industrial and population centers of this country.

This is a condition that cannot be remedied too promptly.

Wars may continue to be decided on the ground, but experience in Spain and China has shown that a vast amount of damage can be done from the air, where the aerial defense is inadequate.

With the navy largely in the Pacific, an air attack upon our eastern seaboard would have to be met largely by the army.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

LUCKY "PUDDLER JIM" WASHINGTON, May 29.—The luckiest man in American politics is the "puddler." With no special equipment, but a certain low shrewdness and pure bull luck, he has kept his place at the public trough since the golden age of Warren Gamaliel Harding.

By now, he is a landmark. From Eastport, Maine, to Long Beach, Cal., young persons ambitious for a life of ease on the people's pay roll ought to make pilgrimage to the senate chamber, there to draw their inspiration from the puddler. They will see a stumpy, marmoreal little man, with a shock of silver hair and a confused manner, which suggests that, after a long training in the purlieus of small-time politics, he has never got used to the eminence of high office. A blind white crawfish, torn from the dark depths of Mammoth Cave, would react to the light in the same vague, unhappy fashion.

As Harding's, Coolidge's, and Hoover's secretary of labor, he did nothing more memorable than recruiting members for his favorite fraternal organization, the Moose. As senator, he has never done or written anything of importance. He is still so stupid that, even in order to get something in the Congressional Record, he often has to call for help from Minority Leader Charles L. McNary. Yet the chances now are that the great state of Pennsylvania will elect him senator for another term.

LONG-SHOT BET Only a few months ago, no one would have bet a cent on the puddler. The Guffey-Earle organization was riding high in Pennsylvania, and the Republican party's angels, Joe Pew, Ernest Wein and Joe Grundy, considered the puddler a radical because of his occasional labor votes.

Grundy, the broken-down tariff lobbyist, trotted out State Senator G. Mason Owlett as his candidate. The word went round that the Sun Oil Company dollars of Pew and the National Steel dollars of the Guffey-Earle organization were behind the puddler. The puddler actually thought of withdrawing from the race. Fortunately for him, he opened his heart to his colleague, Joe Guffey. The now-busted satrap of Pennsylvania told the puddler that he'd better string along.

"Stick with it, Jim," he said. "You'll get the nomination, and that's something, anyway."

Sure enough, Joe Pew and Joe Grundy fell out. The Pew dollars were not lavished on Owlett. The puddler slipped through in good shape. Meanwhile, the Guffey-Earle machine was split wide open. The malodorous doings of its chieftains were exposed to the public gaze. And, having won his primary, the puddler now finds an open course before him in the election race.

MOOSE, MEN AND JOBS The puddler's career is an interesting story. A poor Welsh immigrant boy, he really was a steel puddler in his youth, but he early discovered that it was easier to make a living among the fraternal organizations and in labor politics. He worked hard in both fields. If anything, he gave more effort to his fraternal organizations than to his labor politics. He is still a Mason, Mystic Shriner, Grottoite, Odd Fellow, Knight of Pythias, Elk, Eagle, Forester, Protected Home Circle, Knight of the Golden Eagle, Woodman of the Forest, Macabean and Moose. He is proudest of being a Moose. He loves the Moose and cherishes them. Due to a lottery mix-up, it was once even said that he was the only man who ever milked a Moose, but a jury thought differently.

By 1921, he was such a prominent joiner, and a labor politician of such special caliber that he was a natural for secretary of labor in the Harding cabinet. By a remarkable tenacity, he clung to the job until the people of Pennsylvania sent him to the senate in 1930.

BEAUTIFUL LESSON The story of the puddler's transfer from the secretaryship to the senatorship is the story of the puddler's worth study by all young men and women desiring to get their livings as servants of the people. The puddler's ambition was not to leave the pay roll for as much as five minutes. Therefore, he submitted his resignation to President Hoover with the proviso that the resignation take effect only when he had been sworn in on the hill.

Unhappily, there was some talk that funds had been spent improperly on the puddler's election. The senate refused to swear him on the day appointed. Meanwhile, that morning, the Hon. William Nuckles Doak had taken the oath as secretary of labor. The poor puddler, distraught, ignored his successor, and hastened back to his old office in the Labor Department. There he stayed, firmly maintaining he was still secretary, until President Hoover commanded him to be gone. He did not quite attain the goal he shot for. He was off the pay roll for several hours. But his effort is a beautiful lesson for beginners.

Through The Window.

There is a room at our house. Upstairs. The room, you know, where we keep unwanted things. The storeroom. Junk room. Trash catcher. You know. You all have them.

It had happened that this room, for the past several weeks, had been entered only occasionally. Then, most often after dark. But friend wife wanted something out of it, early that morning, before breakfast.

She hadn't been up there more than a minute when I heard her calling. Her feet came from the head of the stairs. So went up to investigate.

She placed a finger to her lips in that signal for quiet and led me, tip toe, into the room. And to the window. And pointed.

On the swaying branch of a tree, not more than three feet from the open window, a bird was perched. It stood the mother bird and we could occasionally, over the edge, catch a glimpse of tiny moving things. The heads of little nestlings, not more than a few hours out of the egg.

Household Disruption.

That morning I almost reached the crisis of preparing my breakfast. His feet came from the head of the stairs. So went up to investigate.

The little birds are growing. We hear them, through the open dining room window, below. And there are innumerable quiet excursions upstairs to see them.

And we hear the mother bird and her mate, carrying on fascinating conversations in the early morning. She on the nest and he in some more distant tree, seeking the food that fast-growing youngsters must have in ever-increasing quantity. His voice comes from the distance, answering her insistent urging to hurry, please, it's breakfast time and these babies are hungrier than ever, this morning.

The window to that upstairs room needs repairing. And, just an old procrastination. I've been forgetting and postponing a call for the carpenter to come and do the job.

Now it's got to wait until the little birds grow up and fly away from the nest. For nothing that might happen to that feathered housekeeping can be permitted.

Childish Interpretations.

Heard the other day of a little girl who, returning from Sunday school, was asked by her mother what the teacher had taught.

"Oh, she said a lot about suffering kids. Said God liked 'em that way."

The mother couldn't understand and, later, asked what the class subject had been. It was the text, "Suffer little children to come unto Me."

Which reminds of an old story, on Glasgow Green.

FAIR ENOUGH If Experts Wreck the Machine, Green Hands Can't Do Worse

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Amateur NEW YORK, May 29.—A picture has been published showing a dozen high school boys in white coats and muffs, preparing a batch of spaghetti in a school kitchen. This may seem innocent fun, but as one who had experience with amateur male cooks, your correspondent desires to sound a warning. The amateur male cook is a terrible thing. He destroys food, he ruins pots, pans and the digestion of his victims, he spatters marmalade, gravy and eggs all over the walls and ceiling and, worst of all, he bears himself with an insufferable air of modest artistry which never has been called to time until this moment.

Your correspondent has known several amateur male cooks but none more pernicious than Mr. L. Shuman, one of the editors of the New Yorker, whose weakness comes over him in regular cycles about twice a year, at which time he whips up a something which he calls bouillabaisse.

At such times, a few days in advance of the acute stage, Mr. Shuman's eyes take on a foggy faraway look; he forgets appointments and wanders off in strange byways of the city, shopping for the ingredients of bouillabaisse. He goes to Greek, Italian, Persian and Egyptian grocery stores, lifting the lids of crocks and pickle barrels and sniffing their contents and thumping strange melons and pinching exotic tomatoes to see if they are prime.

He comes home with his arms full of parcels and with little packets dangling from all his fingers by loops of string, and stores them away in the kitchen. He goes around mumbling jerked phrases about a pinch of saffron, a sprig of upas and a twist of bark from a slippery elm snipped in the dark of the moon. At the point of seizure grows higher he begins to telephone friends that he is about to have bouillabaisse and, having very loyal friends who rally to him in these crises out of respect for his pronounced virtues which he possesses when normal, he generally gets a quorum.

Last Day The last day, of course, is the worst. That day he stays home from work, and Betty takes little Jimmy down to sit all day in the park or in the movies explaining, "Daddy is having bouillabaisse; he will be all right tomorrow."

"But what is bouillabaisse?" Jimmy inquires, and Betty says, "You are too young to know dear, and so am I."

At this time Mr. Shuman is in the kitchen up to his hip pockets in fish heads, dried octopus, egg shells, shark fins, turtle gibilts, olive oil bottles and dried leaves and various kinds for seasoning while on the stove there simmers and stews his chef d'oeuvre in the making. Fumes rise and permeate their love-borne, neighbors pack a few things hurriedly and leave the building, and the bubbles, rising higher and richer, splatter bouillabaisse juice on the walls and ceiling.

At evening Betty returns with Jimmy just before the arrival of the guests, who usually include Mr. Jimmy Cagney, the moving picture actor, a friend so true that he has been known to come all the way from Hollywood just to see Mr. Shuman through his hour. Once the bouillabaisse has been served the tension begins to ease. Mr. Shuman pours a nice wine and after a few slugs his guests begin to feel no pain and even make passes at the bouillabaisse, like actors eating tiny bits of apple in dinner scenes on the stage.

Complications The amateur male cook sits back awaiting compliments which are generously paid, to the injury of truth, and after all the guests have said twice around, "No, thank you, no more, but it was delicious," Mr. Shuman begins to recognize familiar scenes and friendly faces.

On the way home the guests stop at some tavern to eat and Mr. Shuman's proud inquiry, "How was that bouillabaisse, my dove?" Betty answers, in all truth, "Never better, my hero, and are you all right now?"

Mr. Shuman also scrambles eggs and bakes bread, but in fairness to him it should be stated that he never uses underhand tactics, as some amateur male cooks do. When Mr. Shuman is having bouillabaisse he frankly warns his guests of his condition, saying, "I am having bouillabaisse Thursday, and I want you to come." Other amateur male cooks are less straightforward.

Your correspondent once knew in Washington a very nice man in all outward respects who said, "I must come up this evening. I am having a surprise."

"Suspecting nothing, your correspondent went, and after the host had hidden his hat and coat the host said, with that strange look in his eyes, "I'll bet you don't know what the surprise is."

"No," said your correspondent. "Tell me."

"Baked beans," he said, with a note of leering triumph. "I cooked them myself."

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Bruce Barton, newly elected to congress by a silk-stocking Republican district in New York, says in a recent magazine article that political control has crossed the railroad tracks to stay, and the common people will rule the nation forever hereafter.

When the die-hard conservative reads such things, he begins to see Reds in his nightmares and picture the nation ruined by the rule of the ignorant.

Now, our present rulers, no matter who placed them in office, are the "best people"; and to fear the folly of common men is equivalent to saying that our present rulers are wiser than men below the tracks.

But recent events have shaken the public's faith in that idea. The present rulers of three great nations were horny-handed sons of toil, uneducated and unwashed; and no matter how great their faults, they at least seem to be outsmarting the silk-hat statesmen of the world.

One might also call attention to such common sticks as Lincoln, but it is more to the point to examine the works of our present rulers and see whether there is evidence of superior wisdom.

We'll ignore domestic policies and measures, for each man's opinion of the wisdom or folly of such matters is influenced by the party label he wears. It will be enough to observe how these great ones handled a matter of life and death that affects all of us equally and contains no more politics than a declaration of war.

With a new war threatening, and in view of the fact that sale of munitions helped drag us into the last one, it became necessary to form some policy concerning the sale of arms to nations at war. Considering only our nation's safety, it was obviously sensible thing was to authorize the sale of all products to any buyer who could come and get them and pay cash.

But our great men, having given up the freedom of the seas for which our less timid forefathers fought and died, formed a policy of "neutrality" to keep us safe. And this is the way it works.

The government of Spain, at war with rebels who are backed by Italy and Germany, is denied the right to buy arms from us. But the Japs, waging a war of conquest in China, are permitted to buy all they desire.

Thus our great ones, while dreading and denouncing Fascism, deny arms to a nation which is fighting Fascists, and help a Fascist nation destroy a weaker neighbor.

If that is a sample of high-hat wisdom, country boys and shop men can take over without exposing us to any new hazard.

REPRESENTING GEORGIA

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Forts Benning and McPherson, Ga., will receive $1,318,400 of public works administration funds provided in the spending-relief bill earmarked for new building construction, if the Copeland amendment is accepted by both houses of the congress.

Senator Copeland, of New York, author of the amendment, told his colleagues that $84,551,248 of the $200,000,000 allotted to federal agencies for construction projects in coastal United States, outside the District of Columbia, should be turned over to the secretary of war for buildings at military posts and stations in priorities previously established by him. Some 150 military posts are listed as being worthy of preferential treatment.

Fort Benning would receive $1,019,000 for Cook's school, barracks and warehouse depot and an added $191,300 for fire station and miscellaneous new barracks, while Fort McPherson would be allotted $108,000 for a radio station and dental clinic. In addition to this $1,318,400, the two Georgia forts would share in a sum of $300,000 for "air navigation aids."

The amendment probably will be voted upon late next week.

$212,000,000 In addition to the Copeland amendment, Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., of Georgia, has an amendment pending which would give cotton, wheat and corn farmers $212,000,000 to meet parity prices in their crops, out of which total cotton growers would receive $100,000,000.

Over the week end, there were some talk among senators that wheat and corn legislators would fight this amendment if wheat and corn was not given a large share of the total earmarked funds.

Western senators say that the bottom already has dropped out of the wheat market and that $50,000,000 earmarked for them will not be sufficient to tide them over the depressed market.

However, Senator Russell and his friends are determined to fight back and demand that farmers of the nation, especially those engaged in growing basic crops, receive the fair percentage of relief funds.

Brown Gets Representative Congratulations Paul Brown, of Ohio, is receiving congratulations from his house colleagues for being honored by the faculty and graduating class of the University of Georgia.

Senior invitations for the 13th commencement of the university, which will open on Tuesday, June 14, have been dedicated to the congressman, in small handsomely leather-bound booklets.

"Dedicated to Paul Brown," the invitations say on the fly leaf, "a graduate of Lumpkin Law School, 1901, in admiration of his ability, scholarship and his modesty."

"In appreciation of his friendly and sympathetic interest in the upbuilding of the university and the state of Georgia. In recognition of the esteem and affection" of the people for his public service, we dedicate this publication."

Representative Brown's son, Bobbie, is a freshman at the university.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON

Dr. Frank Price, for 15 years a Presbyterian missionary in China, addressed a group of Atlanta citizens at a luncheon a few days ago, given by Dr. Frank Boland, president of the Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross, on the subject of the appeal now being made through the Red Cross for a million dollars from the people of the United States for the relief of civilian sufferers in China. It was believed that the response to the war-torn Far East I have heard and one of the greatest appeals that has ever come to the people of the United States.

A million dollars seems a rather small amount for the Red Cross to ask of the entire nation, but it is believed that the response will go well beyond a million dollars and it is everywhere agreed that the Red Cross, working in closest co-operation with the missionary agencies in China, will be able to use every dollar given as no other agency in the world could do. Dr. Price, speaking from the standpoint of a missionary, expressed the belief that this is the opportune time for the people of this nation to come to the aid of innocent sufferers in China, through the Red Cross.

Atlanta is asked for a minimum of $3,000, and I imagine the quotas for other Georgia cities and districts will be in keeping with this appointment. That Atlanta will go well beyond its quota was the enthusiastic opinion of friends attending the luncheon last week. Dr. Price told us that Richmond had more than doubled its quota of $3,000, and that other cities where the appeal had been made had gone well beyond the suggested quotas.

General J. H. Reeves, executive director of the Atlanta chapter of the American Red Cross, in introducing Dr. Price, stated that he had lived in China seven years and that he felt this was one of the greatest appeals the Red Cross had ever made to the people of the United States. Individuals, business firms, organizations, churches, and other groups will respond to this appeal immediately, making possible an early report of Georgia's oversubscription.

Polish Schools. Polish kids seem to have a more all-round and jollier school experience than any others. Most public schools in Poland are settled in the country where each class spends a month each year. There are 50 boys and girls in one house, a home in the woods spotlessly clean and tidy. The McGill Finds "Garden Cities" Erected To Afford Parents Opportunity To Rear Children in a Cheerful, Clean Atmosphere.

(This is the seventh in a series of eight articles by Ralph McGill, Constitution sports editor, who is studying abroad under a Rosenwald fellowship.)

By RALPH MCGILL.

LONDON, England (By Mail)—In Vienna I saw the once great "Karl Marx house"—a mile long and still showing some of the signs of shelling by the Dollfuss government when it attacked the Socialists. It is the largest apartment dwelling in the world. In Germany, I saw some of the great housing projects and the others that are begun. There is housing to see in London where plans are made to spend almost $30,000,000 on housing for the year ending March, 1939. I had gone to see Norway's housing and the success of Denmark.

Sweden, which showed the way, continues to lead. In another chapter, there was shown, in brief, the plans and the progress made across more than 25 years in the small housing development of Sweden's building of flats and "garden cities" for larger homes is just as intriguing a story. It is possible to find in Sweden, which has had a democratic form of government for more than 1,000 years, plenty of people who fear the government, Socialist-Democrat, is going too far. It is possible to find plenty of business men who oppose the program.

Yet Sweden manages, despite all its handling of plans and building within the hands of private and co-operative capital. That it is regulated by the government as to profit goes without saying. It is, of course, allowed a profit, but not one which is excessive.

SWEDEN HOUSING BEGAN IN 1904.

Housing developments, which are a product of the New Deal in America, followed hard on the heels of the war in most of the European countries. In Sweden, it began in 1904. Oddly enough, it has been the most conservative governments of Sweden which have produced the most socialist programs and put them into effect. And in the English parliament just the other day I heard Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal party, complain that every social legislation law which England today enjoyed had been "stolen" by the Liberal and Socialist parties and adopted as a Conservative product.

In addition to the development of the "own houses" plan for small homes, the Swedish government has other "garden city" plans which have produced great "gardens" of larger homes.

To enable large families to take advantage of good housing, the government places at their disposal allowances. No family with less than three children is considered for these allowances. The allowance consists of 30 per cent of the rent, with the maximum allowance being 50 per cent. Each year an estimated requirement is made and this is not exceeded. Sweden keeps her budgets balanced.

These people, when possible, are assisted to own their own homes by the method described in the article of yesterday. It is impossible for the bread winner to assume risks so heavy as he might do if left to his own devices or those of an expert salesman. Nor is it possible for him to possess a home which is badly arranged. The government sees to it that this does not happen.

CHANCE TO OWN BRIGHT, CLEAN HOME.

Now, of course, this is a restriction of the citizen's freedom. It does bring to him, no matter if he be a common laborer, a chance to own a small home with bath, electric lights, central heating, a well-arranged lawn and with a near-by park for himself and children.

It is impossible to find in Sweden any signs of dilapidated unpainted shacks, with dirt (there being no bath in the house) mothers and children on the porch or steps. If that be freedom, the Swede prefers to be restricted in his freedom and have a decent place in which to live.

I lived in one of the homes in a garden city for three weeks. It was well made, not cheaply put together. It was six years old and looked new. It was being paid for over 30 years and it was filled with happy people.

I visited some of the smaller homes and flats. The social workers in America have told me that some of the people who have lived for generations and generations in squalor and ugliness,

'DOOMED' WOMAN ENJOYS WEEK-END

Mrs. Lucy Mann Ignores Threat, Passes Deadline by Seeing Movie.

Mrs. Lucy Mann was scheduled to die yesterday—but didn't. Instead, she spent a pleasant, very-much alive day.

Mrs. Mann, who is advertising manager of the Georgia Milk Producers' Confederation, was told last Wednesday by a mysterious telephone caller that she "would be killed by Sunday with a bright and shiny pistol."

She was one of three associates of the confederation threatened in a similar manner within as many days.

Telling about her "deadline" day, Mrs. Mann said:

"I had a wonderful week end. First, I had a grand Sunday dinner. Then my husband and I went to a movie. They came home and listened to the radio for a while. Then we went out to a night engagement."

Mrs. Mann said her "shakiness" had left her completely, and that she didn't feel "nervous or scared any more."

She joked about the "deadline," laughingly suggesting that "maybe the man who threatened me couldn't find a bright and shiny pistol."

Mrs. Mann, who had been told "she had too much to eat on the air" plans her usual broadcast over station WGST this morning. She speaks in behalf of the confederation and its retail stores here.

A. S. TURNER, 64, RITES CONDUCTED

Was Funeral Director in Decatur for Last 25 Years.

Funeral services for A. S. Turner, 64, funeral director in Decatur for 25 years, who died Saturday at his home after a four-month illness, were held yesterday afternoon in the First Baptist church of Decatur, conducted by the Rev. A. J. Moncrief and the Rev. J. M. Haymore.

A native of Rockdale county, Mr. Turner was partner in a funeral home in Conyers for years before moving to Decatur in 1913. He established his own funeral home in 1922.

A member of the First Baptist church, Mr. Turner played an important role in civic affairs and for a number of years he gave the city its street signs. He was a member of Pythagoras Lodge of Masons and the Asarab Temple of the Shrine. He was a member of the Decatur Civic Club. He resided at 210 North Candler street.

SCHOOL BOYS' CLUB HEADED BY MILNER

Men Who Were Students Here Before 1900 Elect Their Officers.

McWhorter Milner has been elected president of the Pioneer School Boys' Club of Atlanta. Other officers elected at the annual meeting Saturday are Eugene M. Mitchell, vice president; E. E. Thornton, secretary-treasurer; P. H. Bell, historian; John Gardner, chairman of the executive committee, and N. J. Wooding, vice chairman.

The club is composed of men who attended school in Atlanta prior to 1900.

Honorary members elected are Bishop Warren A. Candler, J. J. Spaulding, Dr. J. Spole Lyons and Dr. Louie D. Newton. Associate members are John Paschall and Dudley Glass.

Dr. Patrick Calhoun was named honorary vice president for life along with W. E. Kay, of Jacksonville, Fla. Sam W. Wilkes was elected president emeritus for life. Approximately 40 members attended the meeting.

GARRARD H. WALLER, EX-ATLANTAN, DIES

Garrard H. Waller, 68, formerly of Atlanta, died Saturday in a private hospital in Albemarle, N. C., after a month's illness, friends and relatives here learned yesterday.

For the past eight years, Mr. Waller had been a sales representative in the southeast for a shoe company. He was a native of Putnam county.

Surviving are a brother, I. R. Waller, of Atlanta; four sisters, Mrs. W. B. Slaughter, of Atlanta; Mrs. A. H. McBride, of Aragon, Ga.; Mrs. Henry Hearn, of Eaton, Ga.; and Mrs. Mayson Wingard, of Rome, Ga.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in Milledgeville. Burial will be in the family cemetery, Putnam county.

CROSSING VICTIM TO BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Joseph R. Cartwright, 46, of Jonesboro road, College Park, who was killed Saturday night when struck by a Central of Georgia passenger train at John Wesley crossing on South Main street, College Park, will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the chapel of Howard L. Carmichael. Burial will be in Hardeman cemetery, DeKalb county.

Mrs. Cartwright was walking a few feet in front of her husband, a painter, when the train struck her. He was injured slightly when he tried to pull her back.

Father, 'Abducted' Girl Reunited As Tearful Townfolk Look On

COOLVILLE, Ohio, May 29.—(P)—"Betty, how are you?"

A little girl, frightened by all the attention she was receiving, clasped her arms around her father's neck and clung to him in silence.

Thus occurred the reunion today of Ellsworth Hobbs, North Tonawanda (N. Y.) WPA worker, and his four-year-old daughter, Betty Jane, abducted a week ago and feared by police to have been slain.

Five hundred Coolville townfolk looked on—some tearfully—as Hobbs arrived here and rushed to the confectionery store of Mayor Luther C. Bradford. Mayor and Mrs. Bradford had kept Betty Jane overnight after she was discovered here yesterday.

Mrs. Anna Legare, charged with kidnapping, told North Tonawanda officers she brought the child last Thursday to the home here of Mrs. Charles Gillian, Mrs. Legare's sister. The Gillians believed the child was Mrs. Legare's daughter, two detectives who accompanied Hobbs here said.

Hobbs expressed belief Mrs. Legare had developed a love for the girl, but added:

"I have no sympathy for her. Let the law take its course. We

PRINCE, ROOSEVELT WORSHIP TOGETHER

Honeymooning Royalty and First Family Attend Memorial Services.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., May 29. (P)—America's first family was joined in worship in their home church today by youthful Prince Louis Ferdinand, grandson of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II, of Germany, and his pretty bride, the Princess Kyra, descendant of Russian czars.

President Roosevelt drove in the warm sunshine to the Memorial Day service in the Riverside Worshipping Place, which has a sign in front: "The Church of the President."

The royal newlyweds and the President's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, sat with the President in the quaint, old pew at St. James church of many generations of Roosevelts. Ranged behind were the first lady, in tailored suit of blue, the President's son James with his wife, Betsy, and other members of the family.

All around were neighbors—old friends of the man in the White House. A few tourists dropped in to complete the congregation.

The Rev. Frank R. Wilson, St. James' rector, led the congregation in a service befitting Memorial Day week-end. He prayed for the soldiers in the field and the sailors at sea. He prayed also that this country would not have to use them at war, but that if it did they would have heavenly guidance. One of the hymns sung was "America."

In one request for Divine aid, the President's rector asked for help "to put away all bitterness and misunderstanding" and read a paper by an unidentified girl, a member of St. George's church on the east side of New York city.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING INSTALLMENTS.

Clayton Odell, a stranger in Newwood, and Hillary Layne meet unexpectedly when, exhausted after a long swim in a near-by lake, she clutches a canoe in which he is taking a sun bath. He invites her to climb aboard and rest. They take a liking to each other instantly and engage in a lively conversation. Hillary tells him that she works in the office of Romulus Wardlaw's hosiery mill. She describes Wardlaw as "sort of shrewd and grumpy" and complains about the poor pay the employees receive. Clayton gives her his name, but otherwise does not identify himself. Then he brings her ashore. Hillary immediately goes to her home, which she shares with her mother, a brother, Griffith, and a sister, Muriel, whose childhood sweetheart, an aviator, was killed in an accident. Hillary is upset when her mother tells her that Wardlaw's nephew, named Odell, has come to Newwood to help run the mill. Seeing Clayton in the office on Monday Hillary, painfully embarrassed, ignores his apology for not having made known his true identity. Four weeks later he asks her to go canoeing. She hesitates until Clayton says he wants to explain a new job he has for her—assisting him in installing a cost-accounting system. While Clayton is away Wardlaw, who resents his nephew's attentions to Hillary, discharges her. This so enrages Clayton that he resigns. Wardlaw, whose health is impaired, asks him to reconsider, and even offers to take Hillary back. Clayton tells Hillary to come home to apologize for his uncle's unjust treatment of her. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

INSTALLMENT XII.

"Well, he's pretty sure to fix things up then. He seems like such a nice man."

"No he won't. I wouldn't let him know," Larry sat up and hunted for her handkerchief. "Sorry I was such a baby. Mums, I'm all right. It just . . . just sort of got me. It was so sudden."

"Of course it was, dear. Then it must have been Mr. Wardlaw."

"It was me. He sent me the note. You see, it must have been that Mr. Odell didn't tell him right away about my new job and it made him mad. I don't think he liked me very well, anyway."

"Why, of course he did. Didn't your father work for him years and years? He ought to be ashamed of himself. The old . . . old curmudgeon!" Larry forced a fearful smile at this unexpected outburst.

"Well, there's nothing to do about it now," she sighed. "Except to look for a new job. This is a swell recommendation, I'll say. I guess it wouldn't hurt me any in Newwood, though . . . only there aren't any jobs here that I know of."

"You know, dear, Griffith was afraid of something like this. He mentioned it to me again only last night."

Griff had more sense than I gave him credit for," Larry admitted moodily. "Serves me right for putting my neck out, I guess. Oh, well . . ."

"That's right, dear. Don't worry too much. Everything will come out all right, I know. Why don't you go upstairs and bathe your face and hair and then lie down and rest until supper is ready? I'll tell the children what has happened, so you won't have to speak of it. Try to pull yourself together."

"They'll know all about it," Larry remarked somewhat bitterly, as she rose to her feet. "I'll bet you everybody knows by this time."

As she went up the back stairs she wondered if Mr. Odell knew. That's who he was, now . . . not "Clay." Already, she was rather dreading to see him again. And she would have to. He wasn't the sort of a man who would see an injustice like this done without trying to do something to remedy it. He would be almost sure to consider it his fault. It was his fault. But that wasn't going to make things any easier.

Muriel had the tidings first from Mrs. Layne and, while they were discussing the matter, young Griff came home from work.

"Oh, I heard it!" he exclaimed glumly, when his mother started to break the news. "It's all over the mill by now, I reckon. One of the boys saw the kid beating it with his clothes under her arm. He went and told Wilbur Grant and Wilbur came to me about it. I could guess what happened. Didn't I tell you so, just last night? You can't put anything like that over on the old boss."

"I know," his mother interposed hastily. "But be careful what you say to Larry. Both of you. The poor child's dreadfully upset right now."

"Oh, I won't rub it in," Griff promised.

He was as good as his word when he took his place at the table, pausing behind Larry long enough to give her a pat on the arm. A gesture so unusual that quick tears sprang to his sister's eyes. So long as one had "folks," she thought, it didn't much matter what happened. Muriel said nothing about it, but there was a sympathy in her quiet eyes.

"What are you going to do, Mums . . . having me around under foot all day?" she demanded suddenly, trying to ease the tension.

"Why, I'll like it very much," was the prompt answer. "There is so much I'd like to get done before school begins. With both of you girls to help me . . ."

"I think you've got something there," Griff grinned approvingly. "Since I'm the only breadwinner left in the family, I'll expect to be relieved of all household duties from now on."

He was the first to leave the table. While the three women still lingered at their seats, Griff suddenly protruded his head through the dining room door with an important grin for Larry.

"Say, Kid! Old Romeo Grant's parking his chariot out front . . . Maybe ain't lost yet!"

Clayton Odell reassured himself with a start at Wardlaw's calm information that Hillary Layne no longer worked for him.

"Would you mind saying that again?" he managed in amazement.

"I thought I said it plainly enough," his uncle remarked irritably. "I told you that I discharged that Layne girl this afternoon."

"Why?"

"I don't usually go into reasons when I decide to dispense with anybody's services. I sent her a notice and a week's salary, which was fair enough in her case. I don't mind telling you that I had been tempted to do so before. She's too flighty and irresponsible. If it hadn't been for the fact that her father worked for me a long time, I would have let her out long ago. But there's a limit to everything."

"So it seems," the younger man countered grimly. "I assume that her friendship for me didn't help her standing any?"

"Well, I certainly had no intention of letting her disrupt the office by carrying on an affair with you. You'll thank me for it some day."

"I'd thank you right now, if you had waited until I got back!" Clay was trying to hold his anger in check. "You have put me on a tough spot, I don't mind it for myself. But I do mind very seriously such an act of utter injustice . . . to Miss Layne. I just told you I had spoken to her on a new arrangement in her work. She not only agreed to it, but was counting on it."

"Doubtless," was Romulus' dry comment.

"It was unjust and altogether uncalled for. If you didn't like my plan, then you should have told me before taking any action like that. You can't make me believe that Miss Layne would still have her job, otherwise."

"Which is immaterial," his uncle reminded. "I've just told you that you were free to go ahead with the new system. Hire somebody, if you have to. I make no stipulation, except you find a man . . . and don't pay him any more than you must, to begin with."

"Sorry. I'm not interested," Clay rose to his feet and stared down at the small figure in the armchair.

"I don't see any reason for being dramatic," Wardlaw snapped. "Nor do I," came the cool answer. "I don't see any reason for being or doing anything in particular."

"What do you mean?"

"Simply that we can't go on. Your idea of business seems to be domineering everyone that works for you. I don't say it hasn't done well enough for you. But it isn't my way of doing business. Moreover, it isn't going to be."

"Come, come . . ."

"No, I think I'll finish this. It will help me, if it doesn't . . . anybody else. If you will stop to think, you must see that what you did this afternoon puts a finish to my usefulness. As soon as the story gets around I will be set down as a high-priced office boy. You expected me to carry considerable responsibility in the business, and you proceed to cut the ground from under my feet in the first 30 days."

"I'd rather get this out of my system, once and for all," Clay interrupted evenly. "I offered to get out before I started to work. I'm sorry I didn't. If you're going to hold me to the letter of our contract please consider that another 29 days cleans me up. I'll be of any assistance I can in the meanwhile, but don't expect me to display any initiative."

"You are an amazing young fool, sir. You have no claim to my interest, yet I take the trouble to hunt you up and offer you the opportunity of a lifetime. If you had chosen to tend to business, my way, you'd have found yourself the owner of the mill when I'm through with it. There are no stockholders. It's all mine. You'd have had a comfortable fortune by the time you were my age. But you'd throw all that away with the snap of your fingers, all for some high-faloot notion of chivalry, I suppose. A chit of a working girl who never has had anything and never will."

"You can leave Miss Layne out of the matter. She is dispensed with, so far as you are concerned. I will see her as soon as I can and express my . . . mortification, I suppose. Fortunately, she will have no reason to believe that I had anything to do with it. There are no amenities that I can make, of course. I shall tell her that I am leaving your employ also."

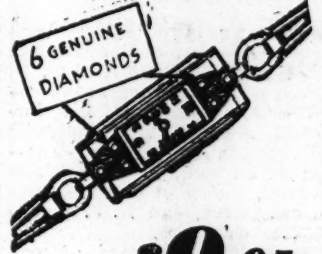

"Don't offer my apologies to the lady," was the sneering retort. "See here, Clayton. You're going. I'll agree to overlook what you have said this evening. I'm ready to give you a free hand from now on. You owe something to me."

"And I owe something to my self-respect. More than to you, I'm sorry it turned out this way, but I have made up my mind."

CAPTAIN COOK'S VISIT TO EASTER ISLAND.

Easter island is most famous for its stone statues, but there are other interesting things about it. For example, we find large rocks with queer pictures on them.

During the exploring journey, the sailors saw a number of stone statues, some standing in place, others lying on the ground. A member of the party measured the only fallen statue which had not been broken. It was 15 feet long and six feet wide.

On the eastern side of the island, the sailors saw many other statues, some standing in place, others lying on the ground. One of those on the ground was eight feet wide and 27 feet long.

The "children of nature" on this island did not seem to know it was wrong to steal. Any object they wanted which belonged to a white man, they took away if they could. Most of all they seemed to want hats or caps, and the visitors had to take care to keep their head coverings from being snatched off.

One reason the natives wanted hats was because the island had no large shade trees. They needed something to guard their heads from the hot sun.

After staying four days on Easter Island, Captain Cook and his men sailed away. We may fancy the wonderful stories about them which the natives told their children and children's children.

HOUSEWIVES HAIL GOLD SHIELD'S NEW BOX STORAGE IDEA

GOLD SHIELD GROUP GIVES PROTECTION PLUS CONVENIENCE

Individual Boxes for Storage of Blankets, Etc., Furnished Free.

S. R. Greenblatt, president of the Gold Shield Group of Launderers & Dry Cleaners, states that Gold Shield has evolved another novel idea in the protective storage field, designed to be a distinct advantage and convenience as well as a protection.

It is a well-known fact that the closets of many homes and apartments are crowded in the summer time with articles which are used only in the fall and winter, thus depriving members of the household of proper closet space for keeping spring and summer clothing in uncrushed condition. To alleviate this evil, Gold Shield furnishes individual storage boxes to their patrons in which they may place curtains, drapes, quilts, blankets, spreads, table scarfs, pillow tops, wall hangings, and, in fact, everything (except clothing) which can be folded without harm.

These boxes are brand-new; no charge is made for them, and they become the property of the customer when they are withdrawn from the vaults. The customer pays only for the necessary laundering or cleaning of the articles, plus the storage charge which is a very small percentage of the customer's own valuation of the contents of the box.

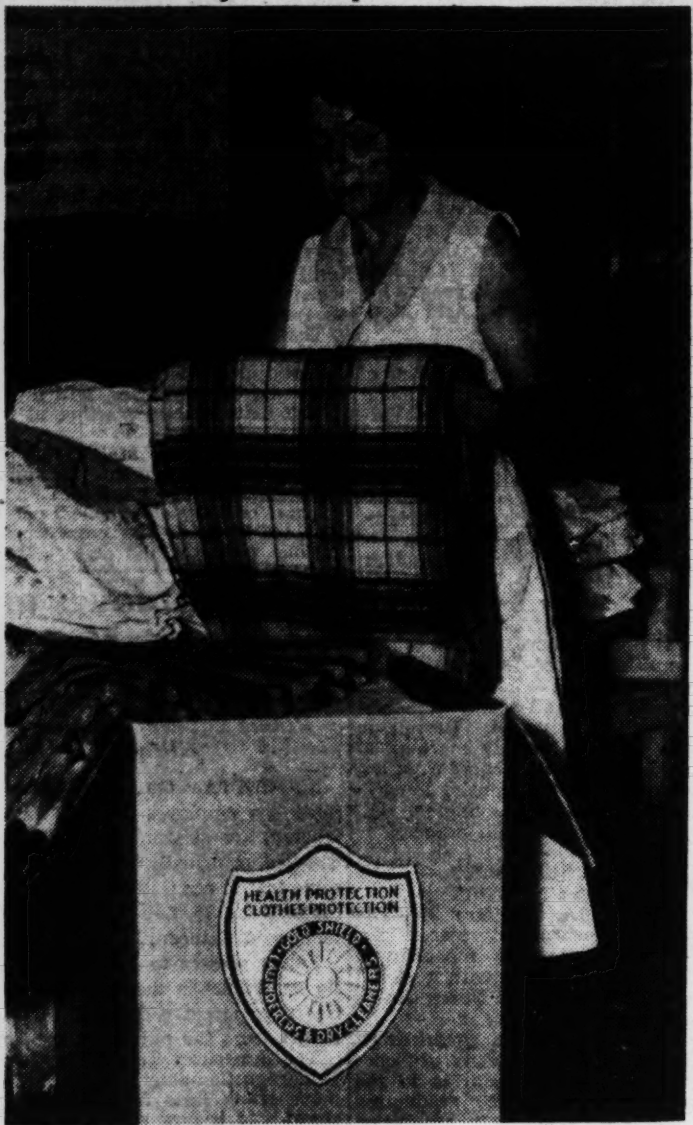

"The box is sealed and placed in Gold Shield's air-conditioned vaults," says Mr. Greenblatt, "where it is safe from fire, moth, burglary, mildew and dirt. The customer pays nothing until she withdraws the box from storage."

Gold Shield plants which offer this unique service are American, Capital City, Excelsior, Guthman, May's, Piedmont, Trio and Troy-Peelerless, in Atlanta, and Decatur Laundry in Decatur.

Advantage of Box Storage.

"Atlanta housewives," continued Mr. Greenblatt, "saw the advantage of box storage immediately; and it certainly is riding on a wave of popularity far beyond what we had anticipated for it. However, our facilities for protective stor-

Another interesting protective storage advantage which Gold Shield offers is a very low flat rate for storing dresses in units of six. Most any woman has six dresses for which she has no need

PHONE GATE CITY WHEN MATTRESS WORK IS NEEDED

Established Concern on Edgewood Avenue Featuring Inter-Spring.

Maintaining a prompt truck service, ready to call for your old mattress and return it completely made over, the Gate City Mattress Company, located at 625 Edgewood avenue, continues to make its bid for work of this kind, and is keeping its forces busy these days.

Paul G. Hornbuckle, owner and manager, is making a special drive on his spring-field mattresses. "This type of mattress," he said, "has proven its worth, and provided comfort for its users more than any other mattress we know of. Our company is able to supply a new one, made up from the many desirable tick patterns we carry in stock, or we can take your old mattress, steam sterilize it, and otherwise make it more comfortable and desirable, and can place inside a pair of springs which we can supply, thus giving you that much-desired inner-spring mattress."

Of course, in addition to featuring this inner-spring mattress, Mr. Hornbuckle states that he is prepared to make over old mattresses, making them comfortable as new. His company also is prepared with steam sterilizing machines to make feathers fluffy and practically as good as new for pillows and the like. Many people, said Mr. Hornbuckle, are taking their old feather beds and having them made into pillows.

A call to the company will bring a man to give you estimates and to attend to your needs, whether for a new mattress to be made, or for one to be renovated, or, better still, to convert one of your old mattresses into a spring-field mattress.

and now they have learned that wool wearing apparel needs that protection also. How much cheaper it is to pay the small storage charge for a man's wool suit or overcoat than the bill it eaten by moths or stolen while the family is away on vacation.

"Gold Shield's storage facilities safely care for all kinds of wearing apparel and household furnishings, except furniture," concluded Mr. Greenblatt. "They are available to out-of-town people also, and each year more patrons take advantage of this protection. All that is necessary is for them to send whatever they want stored by insured parcel post or by express, together with a letter containing their estimation of the value of each individual article. Gold Shield sends them a receipt, and returns the article to them whenever they are notified to do so."

BLACK ROCK CLUB OFFERS PATRONS FISHING--GOLFING

Popular Club on Campbellton Road Ideal for Fun and Recreation.

While there is no more prize fishing at Black Rock Club—"Oscar," the $500 prize bass having been captured several times, which has ended the paying of handsome prizes—there is still great enjoyment and sport for the "Isaac Waltons" who love to pull the finny tribe from the placid waters of the lake at this popular club on Campbellton road.

Fishing privileges can be secured from G. H. A. Thomas, owner, and no other diversion offers more pleasure at this time.

If you like swimming, then lay aside your rod and reel and take a flyer into the cooling waters of the lake. Officials of Black Rock Club have made special preparations for bathers the coming season. They have remodeled and installed Lyon steel lockers, making everything safe and convenient for patrons of the park. Four modern showers have been installed for golfers. These are fitted up in tile and marble.

And speaking of golfers, there is an ideal 18-hole course, where hundreds are spending their leisure time on the greens. "A small green fee entitles golf lovers to use one of the finest golf courses in the south," Mr. Thomas said. "Nine or 18 holes of golf may be played for only one green fee," he said.

The 18-hole golf course alone covers over 200 acres with excellent fairways and greens. The greens are worked constantly, and are considered among the best in the south, Mr. Thomas said. Convenient to downtown businessmen who like to go directly from offices to play golf, the club offers convenient dressing rooms so that golfers can dress for town or for golf at the club. An efficient group of caddies, anxious to please, is always available.

The club may be reached by going straight out the street to the Campbellton road, to the gates of the club.

RYBERT COMPANY IS BUSY PRINTERS

Edgewood Avenue Plant Well Equipped for All Commercial Work.

Meeting the needs and demands of a number of business houses in the line of "printing that pleases," the Rybert Printing Company, at 311-313 Edgewood avenue, is one of the busy spots along this well-traveled avenue.

For 25 years Thomas F. Rybert has been printer for many scores of customers in this city. His name is closely linked with the printing world of Atlanta. Some 10 to 15 years ago he established a modern plant at his present location on Edgewood avenue, where he has grown from a small plant to one of good proportions, occupying a two-story building and a one-story structure adjoining, employing an average of about 20 people.

Not only commercial printing of all kinds, such as letterheads, envelopes, circulars, blotters, pamphlets, and the like are turned out from the Rybert plant, but it specializes in insurance work, both for fire and life insurance companies, and is proud to number among its customers many of such concerns in the city who secure their forms and various other printing matter from it. In addition, the company does ruling and binding, and has a well-equipped plant for such work.

Addressing envelopes before the insertion of mail advertising, which the plant prints for a number of houses, is also a feature with the company. "We take particular care of such advertising matter," says Mr. Rybert, "and through our force of trained specialists in this work we are doing much of it from time to time."

A call to the company for estimates on any type of commercial work will bring either Mr. Rybert himself or his sales manager, A. E. Rasbridge, to attend your needs, whether it is a small plain job, or one requiring extra care and involving artistic color work. While the plant is kept fairly busy at all times, prompt attention is given to all calls and the delivery of all work, says Mr. Rybert.

MRS. R. J. ROBINSON SR. FUNERAL RITES TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. R. J. Robinson Sr., 88, who died Saturday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. B. S. Knight, of 1217 Burlington road, N. E., following a four-week illness, will be conducted at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill by the Rev. E. B. Quick. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

The former Miss Inez Z. Garrett, Mrs. Robinson was born in Gwinnett county. She has made her home here since shortly after the War Between the States.

TAKES AN EXPERT TO SEE AND KNOW SIGNS OF TERMITES

Activity of These Pests Can Be Checked If Detected in Early Stages.

It is practically impossible for anyone but an expert to detect signs of termite activity in the early stages, according to W. H. Sullivan, of Bruce Terminix Company. Often serious damage has been done before the home owner is even aware that his property is infested.

The reason for this, Mr. Sullivan explains, is that termites work always hidden within the wood, rarely, if ever, coming to the surface where they may be seen. They work back and forth, inside the wood, eventually riddling even the heaviest timbers. Yet, from the outside these timbers appear to be perfectly sound. Only when they give way under the strain and begin to sag does the damage become obvious. Then the harm is already done, and expensive repairs are usually necessary.

If termite activity is detected in the early stages it can be checked in time to avoid these costly replacements, says Mr. Sullivan. And the only way to find out in time is to call in an expert termite inspector, whose thorough training and experience enables him to ferret out even the slightest termite infestation.

Mr. Sullivan announced that Bruce Terminix Company, 109 Ponce de Leon avenue, N. E., phone Walnut 3131, will gladly inspect any property for termites. There is no charge for this and absolutely no obligation.

Bruce Terminix Company is one of the 53 licensees of E. L. Bruce Co., comprising the world's largest termite control organization, which has inspected over 500,000 homes and buildings for termites.

SENATOR NORRIS SEEKS TVA COSTS FOR YARDSTICK

Quick Allocation Wanted So That Private Rates May Be Measured.

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska, said today he believed the Tennessee Valley Authority should hasten its allocation of power costs on TVA dams so that a definite yardstick for measuring private electricity rates could be fixed.

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, ousted TVA chairman, has charged that "hidden subsidies" enable TVA to hold its power rates down. These charges turned attention of the congressional TVA investigating committee to the yardstick problem, and some members said they hoped the committee could aid in solving it.

"Difference of Opinion"

Norris said a "difference of opinion" was involved in Dr. Morgan's contention that TVA received "hidden subsidies" through the canvassing of prospective customers by the Electric Farm and Home Authority and county agents, and through publicity given the public power venture by speeches of President Roosevelt and members of congress.

Norris acknowledged that privately owned power companies must spend large sums in building up their power sales before they can fix their rates at a point of profit. The same factors should be considered in fixing TVA rates, he said, adding, however, that much controversy was inevitable over just what items should be included.

Sees Low Costs.

The Nebraska senator, who is the congressional father of TVA, said the allocation of power costs on TVA dams would have to be more or less arbitrary.

HARLAN DEFENDANT NAMED IN ASSAULT

Government Attorneys Probe Arrest on Kentucky Miner's Charge.

LONDON, Ky., May 29.—(AP)—The center of interest in the Harlan coal labor feud shifted today from London, scene of the anti-union conspiracy trial of operators and former or present deputy sheriff mineguards, to Harlan itself, 80 miles to the southeast.

Government attorneys here, setting the stage for the third week of the trial, sought information on the reported arrest of two law officer-defendants who had gone back to Harlan for the week-end.

PROBE OF LICENSES TO RESUME TODAY

'Big-Shot' Bootleggers Using 'Front Men,' Grand Jury Investigation Indicates.

The Fulton county grand jury today will resume its probe of methods of obtaining liquor licenses with about 30 liquor dealers who were questioned by the jury last week scheduled to reappear.

Liquor dealers were being asked how they obtained their licenses and whether they had any dealings with attorneys or any member of city council, it was reported.

Records of applications were studied by the jury Friday as City Clerk Joe Richardson went before the body. The jury may recall the records for further study this week.

Meanwhile, the law enforcement graft investigation was being held up while Assistant Solicitor General E. E. Andrews prepared for the court trial of Joe F. Schilling Sr. and Gus H. Howard Jr., former deputy sheriffs indicted on nine counts charging bribery.

Howard and Schilling are to go into court Wednesday.

Atlantan Heads Georgia Business Girls; 1939 Session Here

Shining Noses Okay If the Spirits Shine, Too, Speaker Declares.

By YOLANDE GWIN.
Constitution Staff Writer.

MARIETTA, Ga., May 29.—Election of Miss Willie Thompson, of Atlanta, as chairman, and selection of Atlanta as next year's convention city were the highlights of the closing session of the two-day meeting of the Georgia Business Girls' conference in session here today.

Miss Fannie Mae Teat, of Athens, was named cochairman; Miss Sara McKinney, of Atlanta, treasurer, and Miss Margaret Carpenter, secretary. The invitation to hold the conference in Atlanta next year was extended by Miss McKinney. Miss Eva Langley, president of the Marietta Business Girls' Club, the hostess organization, was chairman of the nominating committee which was composed of Miss Mildred Guy, of Savannah; Mrs. Vic Bullard, of Athens; Miss Espie Hicks, of Macon; Miss Lucille Foster, of Augusta, and Miss Reggie Sue Daniel, of Atlanta.

Will Christianity Work?

Delegates from 27 clubs at Atlanta, Athens, Augusta, Macon and Savannah attended the business session today which followed a morning session which was devoted to round-table discussions. On the latter program were Mrs. Clara Strubling, of Macon, whose subject was "Will Christianity Work?"; Mrs. Cullen B. Gosnell, of Atlanta, who spoke on "Business Women in Y. W. C. A. Work," and Miss Iva M. Williamson, whose subject was "World Affairs as Related to Business Women."

Prior to the election of officers Miss Ethel Moore discussed the reorganization plan which was introduced at the recent assembly of Business and Professional Women's Association of the Y. W. C. A. held in Columbus. In part the plan calls for an area council of not less than five members to be established for each summer conference area, and consisting of the elected member of each week-end conference in the area, national council members residing in the area, project chairmen, summer conference chairmen and a finance chairman to be elected at the summer conference. The area council, she said, elects its own chairman, who automatically becomes a member of the national council.

The chairman and the finance chairman are to serve for the biennium. It is required that all national council members shall be occupied in business as a profession or unemployed for the time being.

This plan was approved here today. Miss Margaret Carpenter, of Marietta, introduced a resolution, later passed, that a committee be appointed by the new officers to draw up a constitution and by-laws for the conference to be presented at the Atlanta convention.

Anti-War Report.
Miss Ora Dozier, state delegate to the Cause and Cure of War conference, reported the principal objectives were to build effective peace machinery, reduce war machinery and to obtain guaranteed security against war for every nation.

Miss Emily Woodward, of Vienna, was the principal speaker on the program today following the business session. She spoke on "What the Business Girl Can Achieve in Georgia." She said in part:

"Georgia and the nation have never been more in need of women who hold to high standards and who believe in the eternal verities. Today women have occupational restrictions. They run the gamut from bank presidents to brick masons. Still, for the most part women must continue to look to men to provide their occupation and must admit that in a large measure, men are reluctant to release women from secondary positions."

"Discarding Too Much?"
"I sometimes feel," she continued, "that we of the modern world are losing the ability to distinguish between true and false values in life. It is true that we have thrown off many foolish conventions that bound our women ancestors, but it seems to be characteristic of women that when we begin discarding, we overdo the act. In throwing light on our sets, bustles and ruffled petticoats in the scrap heap, isn't it possible that we have carelessly slipped off certain other vestments that are essential to feminine charm?"

She said that only through vibrant interest in the problems of the civilization of which a business girl is a part can she equip herself for a more useful and more distinguished service in the business world. Women have always been charged with having too much curiosity. Miss Woodward stated, and added that that characteristic could be turned into good account by converting it to wholesome interest in things worth while.

A Shining Nose, or Spirit.
"It is possible for us business women to spend more time and money improving the interior of our heads rather than the exterior. Real beauty comes from within. A shining nose can be forgotten if a girl carries along with a shining spirit and her red nail polish may be left off if she is careful to keep her mind polished with interest and information. But remember to make the most of those qualities which you possess which cannot be reckoned with money and which may be brought to the highest possibility of development."

Today's session closed with a luncheon with the local club members as hostesses. Boy and Girl Scouts aided the delegates throughout the convention. On the conference committee were Mary Lance, Louise Wilson, Margaret Carpenter, Clyde Morris, Sarah Brown, Marie Belle Isle, Eva Miller, Carolyn White, Nellie Bishop, Mae Swanson, Idelle Dickens, Luella Mangum, Glo Watkins, Eva Langley, Martha Gramling, Mae Dobbins Kincaid, Florence Hembree, Katherine Johnson, Lois Hillhouse, Clara Nolem, Daisy Roach and Mrs. Fred Burton.

2 ROME INDUSTRIES BOOST OPERATIONS

Business Leaders Express Their Optimism.

ROME, Ga., May 29.—Rome business leaders viewed the coming months with optimism today as officials at two of the largest industrial plants in this section announced production and employment schedules.

R. D. Harvey, agent for the Peppercell Manufacturing Company, announced the huge plant in Lindale will begin a five-day-per-week operation schedule Monday. The plant has been operating only two days a week since February. About 2,000 persons are employed in Lindale at present.

R. C. Jones, manager of the Tubize-Chattillon Corporation here, announced yesterday that 100 persons were given jobs at the rayon plant last week and production at the plant will be increased slightly, beginning this week.

DARLINGTON SCHOOL EXERCISES TODAY

Dr. Robert W. Miles, of Louisville, Ky., Is Principal Speaker.

ROME, Ga., May 29.—Following presentation of awards during class and honor day yesterday, Darlington school seniors heard their baccalaureate sermon this morning delivered by Dr. J. W. Johnson, in the First Methodist church, of which he is pastor. Final exercises will be held Monday.

Annual awards made included the following: George Griffin, of Rome, valedictorian, first honor man; William Congleton, of Versailles, Ky., salutatorian, second honor man; Bill LeGrand, Shelby, N. C. faculty medal for general excellence; honor council for 1938-39, John Reynolds, of Marietta, president, and Max Guinn, of Ducktown, Tenn., vice president; Jimmie Dempsey, Wilson, N. C. Proctor debate medal; George Griffin, of Rome, journalistic trophy; Bobby Moore, Bolton, sportsmanship award; Leon Culbertson, of Shannon; J. M. Harden, loving cup for best all-round athlete.

Final exercises at Darlington will be held Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Dr. Robert W. Miles, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, at Lexington, Ky., will deliver the main address.

CORNELIA SCHOOLS WILL CLOSE MONDAY

CORNELIA, Ga., May 29.—The final commencement season for the Cornelia public schools will close Monday night with a recital by the pupils of Mrs. Nancy Cook's dancing class.

Dr. W. O. Payne, professor of history at the University of Georgia, delivered an address to the 19 members of the graduating class. Cliff Kimsey Jr., was valedictorian, and Holmes Foster was salutatorian of the class.

The other members of the class were Jefferson Hulse, Laurence Crunkleton, Charles Chambers, Kathleen Moody, Laura Stovall, John Herndon Brown, Rosalyn Grant, Joe Grant Jr., Joe Snyder, Martha Carey, Sara Coburn, Max Davis, Martha Brewer, Jay Flint, William Maxwell.

SAN LUIS POTOSI BACK TO 'NORMAL'

Cedillo, Rebel Leader, and Followers Sought in Hill Country.

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, May 29.—(AP) Government spokesmen declared today San Luis Potosi state had been "virtually restored to normalcy" following the revolt May 20 of General Saturnino Cedillo.

Cedillo, with a handful of followers, was sought in the rolling, brush-covered country northwest of this state capital and in the rugged mountains north and east of Las Palomas, the estate he left to head the rebellion against President Lazaro Cardenas.

His two speedy airplanes were in government hands and his forces were diminishing. Army officers estimated his supporters had dwindled to scattered bands numbering 1,000 men at the most.

General Perez Gallardo, leading troops which flushed the planes Friday at Zenzonte (Mockingbird) ranch, northeast of Las Palomas, said it had been learned Cedillo was fleeing afoot, accompanied by "a few" men.

One of the planes took the air amid a hail of bullets only to be forced down near here. It was first reported Cedillo had been shot.

Four aviators in the plane were captured and held at military headquarters here. The four were identified by the defense ministry as Guillermo Gilbert, Rafael Rico, Carlos Robles and Alfonso Leas, graduates of the aviation school which Cedillo established when he was Governor of San Luis Potosi.

with the hatchery dam. The cloudburst fell without warning shortly after midnight over the six-square-mile drainage area feeding the Little River.

First notice the sleeping vacationists of the menace was water flowing over their beds, both above and below the dam.

The dam went out within a few minutes, giving several of those camped below it scant time to climb trees or flee to higher ground before 10 feet of water swept over their tents.

More than a dozen persons reported they spent from two to four hours perched in trees, several with small children in their arms.

One man was swept half a mile downstream.

TORNADO HITS OKLAHOMA; MINES ARE INUNDATED

MIAMI, Okla., May 29.—(AP)—A small tornado accompanied by hail and heavy rain struck Quapaw, Okla., 15 miles northeast of here, early today while hail, lightning, wind and rising streams caused damage here and elsewhere in Oklahoma's extreme northeast corner.

Damages to buildings, mines, crops, power lines and interurban lines were heavy. Several mines were inundated by streams in the lead and zinc area.

Fifty families were without shelter at Hockerville, Okla., after hailstones shattered the roofs of as many homes.

Grand State Military Ball Starts At 8 O'Clock Tonight at Auditorium

Legion Post No. 1 Officers Confident Affair Will Attract Record Attendance; Infantry Band Will Give Concert, Dancing Will Follow.

Officers of American Legion Post No. 1 expressed confidence yesterday that the grand state military ball at the auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight will attract a record attendance.

They stressed the fact that the public generally is invited. Tickets may be obtained at offices of Post No. 1, 31 Pryor street, S. W., until 6 o'clock this afternoon, when sale will be transferred to the auditorium box office.

The 122d infantry band, directed by Calvin C. Barber, and the Atlanta girls' military band, directed by H. A. Taylor, will give a half-hour concert starting at 8 o'clock.

At 8:30 o'clock, Major Ralph P. Black, grand marshal for the occasion, will direct brilliant and colorful military ceremonies, participated in by Legion posts from various parts of the state. Included in these ceremonies will be the advancement and retirement of colors borne by the Confederate army during the War Between the States. Major General James A. Driver, C. S. A., will lead a group of fellow soldiers of the sixties, the military bands playing "Dixie" as their colors are advanced.

General dancing to music by one of the south's best orchestras will follow the brief but brilliant military ceremonies. The large arena of the auditorium has been recovered for the A. B. Reisman, chairman of the ball, announced. There also will be dancing in Taft hall. Comedy features will include a performance of John Skelton, of Griffin, "one man band," who will have a drum major. According to Skelton this "is somewhat of an effort."

The music will start about 8:45 o'clock, continuing "until."

City Employees and WPA Laborers Work on Marietta Improvements

Cherokee Street Being Widened for Six Blocks From the Public Square, Another of Projects Designed To Facilitate Parking, Promote Safety.

MARIETTA, Ga., May 29.—Sixty city employees and 150 WPA laborers are at work in Marietta, engaged principally in projects to solve traffic congestion in the city limits, John W. Lewis, mayor pro tem, said Saturday.

Latest project to improve traffic conditions is the widening of Cherokee street a distance of six blocks from the public square.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has agreed to move trunk lines from Cherokee street, and is now securing right-of-way west of Marietta. Removal of the telephone poles from this street—which is the route of most north-south tourist traffic—will enable the city to widen it four feet more, and will also permit beautification of the route.

To make possible street widening on Church and other streets, the telephone company and the board of lights and waterworks will consolidate their local lines on one system of poles.

Other main thoroughfares widened include Whitlock street, Lawrence street and Washington avenue. Objective of the projects is to widen every main street leading into the business section, in order to provide additional parking space and promote safety. On week ends (Friday and Saturday), shoppers find difficulty in securing parking space in the business area, and the entire police force stays on duty in an effort to keep traffic unobstructed.

Another project planned to solve this problem is a farmer's market to the west of the N. C. & St. L. Railroad station, which will eliminate the curb market on the square. A committee of city council is studying this proposal and probably will report at the June council session.

A third phase of the traffic betterment program is the elimination of blind corners in residential areas. Lewis reported thus far 18 "safety corners" had been completed on Cherokee, Church and Kennesaw avenue.

Other construction work includes the laying of a mile-long pipeline to the CCC camp at the base of Kennesaw mountain, which will be completed next week; increasing the size of water mains in many outlying residential areas.

LOCOMOTIVE KILLS MAN AT MARIETTA

L. L. Carver Lives Hours After Wheels Pass Over Him; Friend Is Hurt.

MARIETTA, Ga., May 29.—One youth was killed and another injured about 1 o'clock this morning when they were struck by an L. & N. southbound freight train while sitting on the tracks near Brumby Chair Company in Marietta.

The engineer of the freight reported to the railroad office here that he saw the pair but did not have time to stop.

Lenuel Lamar Carver, 27, of Marietta, the dead youth, was mutilated by the engine wheels, but lived until about 5 o'clock after being taken to Marietta hospital. Norris Chapel, brother of Elmo Chapel, Marietta, and Atlanta wrestler, escaped serious injuries and was released from the hospital this afternoon.

Funeral services for Carver will be held Tuesday at 3 o'clock (D. S. T.) at Fairview Baptist church, near Nelson, Ga., with the Rev. John Darnell officiating. Burial will be in the churchyard.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Carver; a sister, Minnie Mae Carver, all of Marietta, and a brother, William Carver, of Nelson, Ga.

CLOUDY WITH SHOWERS IS PREDICTED TODAY

Partly cloudy, with not much change in temperature and showers a probability, is the weather prospect today for Atlanta, according to the forecast issued last night at Candler airport weather office.

The brief but furious thunder-shower that broke over the city early yesterday afternoon accounted only for a quarter of an inch of rain at the airport weather office. No storm damage was reported in Atlanta or surrounding areas.

Temperatures ranged yesterday between 62 degrees and 82 degrees. The mercury today is expected to range between 61 degrees and 83 degrees.

DIXIE PUBLISHERS SEE TRADE UPTURN

Stahlman Says Newsprint Will Bring More Cash Than Textiles.

EDGEWATER PARK, Miss., May 29.—(AP)—Publishers gathered here for the opening tomorrow of the annual convention of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association predicted better business generally by the first of next year.

Immediate problems before the publishers, they said, were rising costs of everything that goes into production of newspapers.

Prominent in the minds of the publishers was the problem of locating news print manufacturing plants in the south which James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville Banner, said "would provide cash on the barrel for the impoverished southern farmer" greater than that produced by the southern textile industry.

Stahlman, president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association and chairman of the newsprint manufacture committee of SNPA, will report Tuesday on plans for establishing the first southern newsprint mill at Lufkin, Texas. Such a plant would involve an investment of $7,500,000 or more, Stahlman said, surveys have been made looking toward the advisability of establishing plants in other southern states—Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Arkansas, Georgia and Louisiana—but that no definite action has yet been taken.

The proposition was organized in Atlanta in 1903. At least eight former presidents of the associations were attending this session. They were:

C. B. Johnson, Charlotte Observer; M. E. Foster, Houston Press; Mr. H. H. Johnson, Chattanooga News; Clark Howell Jr., Atlanta Constitution; Mr. Stahlman; E. K. Gaylor, Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Times; James E. Chappell, Birmingham News and Age-Herald; Ted Dealey Dallas News Journal, is present head of the association.

TAMPA FLOG TRIAL RESUMES TODAY

Case Drags Through Its 30th Month.

BARTOW, Fla., May 29.—(AP)—Florida renews tomorrow its long-drawn effort to punish five former Tampa policemen for a "political" flogging which made that gulf port the center of a civil liberties controversy.

Thirty months ago, Eugene Poulton, Sam Rogers and Joseph Shoemaker were arrested at a meeting of the Modern Democrats, a small, local political party opposed to the city administration, and accused by its enemies of communistic leanings. The men were later released and then flogged.

Five of tomorrow's defendants—C. A. Brown Jr., Sam Crosby, John Bridges, F. W. Sitzer and C. W. Carlisle—were convicted of kidnapping and sentenced to four years each but the state supreme court ordered a new trial on technical grounds.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

REEDSVILLE, West Virginia—Yesterday, after writing the column, we set forth and visited Scotts Run where a great many of my old friends still live in spite of the fact that all the buildings have been sold to a junk dealer. Just exactly what is going to happen to these people when their homes disappear I do not know, but I don't think they will find themselves in any worse condition.

I barely had time to tidy up before the first dinner served at the Arthurdale Inn was underway. I made myself most unpopular by arriving late because I had invited three gentlemen to come over to talk to me about some social service work they wished to continue in Scotts Run. The building they occupied was being torn down by the mine owners. A church fund had given them a certain sum of money and they had collected a little more, but not sufficient to build a real community house. They had hoped to have one in this community, which certainly needs something of the kind.

During dinner we were entertained by a very charming girl quartette, a male quartette and several other young people. This celebration was in the nature of a house-warming and we adjourned immediately afterwards to the school gymnasium. Here a program of square dancing by the Arthurdale community in general, singing by the school glee club, and music by the Arthurdale band, afforded everybody a great deal of pleasure. When we finally wended our way home about 11 o'clock, I think everybody was quite ready to go to bed.

I had forgotten that one duty still awaited me, and, in a short time, the school principal, Mr. E. Grant Nine, appeared with the diplomas for the graduating class and I signed them. They can graduate quite as well without this signature, but it seems to add to their pleasure so I have signed them for the past year or two. This is the first class which has spent its whole four years in the high school. The group's only disappointment is that one senior has been taken ill and will not be able to graduate with them.

Early this morning we met the President's train. Then Mrs. Morgenthau and I went with Mr. Floyd Cox, superintendent of schools in Monongalia county, to the dedication of the negro high school near Morgantown. This is the only negro high school building in this county. They have been hoping for one ever since a high school group first met in a room above an ice cream factory which had been donated for this purpose. With the co-operation of WPA, they finally have an adequate building in which they should do very good work, particularly if the entire community co-operates in the way which their attendance at the ceremonies this morning indicated.

We were back in time to meet the President at a luncheon given by the faculty of the school. Then the school committee held a meeting and we adjourned to the gymnasium for the graduation ceremonies.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondents invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield in care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I am told that I have a way with the girls, that I am easy on their eyes and hard on their hearts. But believe me, there's a lot of grief in it. I meet a baby and like her and say to myself "Now here's the pal who won't push me in the creek." But after a few dates she begins to speak of love. Now what's a guy to do when he's not interested? If he says so, she won't play any more and if he tells a lie he gets in deeper with every date. I am out for a good time on a give-nothing, take-nothing basis, but if there are any girls like that around I haven't found them. The minute you get going and see a good time ahead they see something else ahead—which isn't there. I thought a woman would know the answer.

PLAYBOY.

ANSWER: I know several answers, but unfortunately none of them will give you much pleasure or satisfaction, nor even appeal to you as being right. Answer because you are conceived, inclined to air your ego and not quite frank in doing it. Hard words but they are meant to be helpful.

Now, it so happens that the female in her folly believes (until experience teaches her to the contrary, even then she sometimes fails to learn), believes that the boy friend's squeezing her hand and asking her for a kiss indicates that he cares for her. So before she answers with the kiss she asks him to speak of love. Otherwise she feels cheap in bestowing the favor. Now, come clean, haven't you spoken of kisses before the girls have spoken of love?

What do you mean by a give-nothing, take-nothing basis? Had it occurred to you that a girl's time and interest is her stock in trade? If she wastes her youth on playboys who see nothing ahead but play, where will she find herself when marrying time comes? Understand, when the playboy has a serious thought, if he ever does, he can go scouting until he finds the bright particular woman he wishes to make his wife. His former playmate is less lucky: she has to sit and wait for a suitor to seek her out.

Furthermore, the handsome heartbreaker who's merely out for a good time is entitled to it only so long as he doesn't monopolize a girl who's out for a husband and a home. He hasn't the right to jeopardize a girl's future in order to satisfy his appetite for a good time. The only safety for him is in numbers and even then he'd better stay on his side of the fence if he doesn't want to be hauled and led to the altar, or embarrassed, no end, by jerking loose to make his escape. You see, the girls are seeking to put themselves in perpetual care and they feel out all corners.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Hollywood Today

By SHEILAH GRAHAM.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE INTRODUCES: To young Miss America, Shirley Temple has become the nation's leader in fashions, so it is predicted her newest "flip-flap" frock will soon have a wide following. The dress, named "flip-flap" by Shirley because of its all-around pleated skirt, is made of navy blue and white striped silk. The guimpe is of organdy with a real lace collar.

HOLLYWOOD, May 29.—What Shirley Temple wears today, the rest of young feminine America will be wearing tomorrow. So it's just as well to study the new "flip-flap" frock La Temple introduces in her forthcoming "Little Miss Broadway." It was christened "flip-flap" by the little star on account of the all-around pleated skirt with its graceful swing. Made of navy blue and white striped silk, the stripes are printed in multi-colored minute flowers. The guimpe is of organdy, its turnover collar finished with real lace.

Claire Trevor believes in fashion realism. When she buys a flower-trimmed hat she immediately sprays it with the proper perfume—L. e., lilies-of-the-valley fragrance for a pillbox chapeau covered with the tiny white flowers. Loretta Young liked her white formal in "Three Blind Mice" so much she has ordered a duplicate for her personal wardrobe. The filmy gown is made of soufflé, the skirt and bodice lightly strewn with white lace made from the same material, and set with tiny rhinestones. The skirt is full and floating, and bodice draped.

Milo Anderson has designed a suit for Gale Page that can be worn two ways. It is of nubby wool cloth made with a straight-lined skirt and a two-thirds boxy jacket. The latter is faced with a novelty material showing navy and white embroidered dots against a field of claret to be worn as a tuxedo jacket with contrasting revers. There is also a little collar for use when the jacket is buttoned up snugly at the neck.

When Sonja Henie first came to Hollywood, everything she bought—clothes, car, etc.—was white, but now that she is on the crest of the newest bathing outfit purchased by the skating queen combines three shades of blue. The two-piece swim suit is made of pale blue with delft blue satin. For after her dip there is a full-length navy blue jersey coat lined with the other shades of blue.

One of the most amusing Hollywood fads of the moment is "Rabbitito," a straw carry-all woven in the shape of an elongated rabbit paper (flowered wall paper for instance) and pleated into a big gay fan and put this in the fireplace just back of the andirons to brighten up the effect.

The Best Bet. But when all's said and done, nothing is half so nice as fresh flowers here as elsewhere, so if you're a good hand with the garden and are assured plenty of cut flowers for the house, then by all means, plan on having them in your fireplace in graceful arrangement. Your best bet here would be to get a glass fish tank in a size to fit into the fireplace opening. This you can keep banked with greenery and large dramatic flowers for a charming fragrant effect. Next best would be a large vase or bowl for flowers. Or even a fish tank filled with tropical fish indirectly lighted would stand out and contribute design and interest to this space.

Hostess to Class. Jane Lowery was hostess recently at a lawn party at the home of her aunt, Mrs. W. V. Hitchcock, on Gordon road.

Assisting Mrs. Hitchcock in entertaining were Misses Alice and Johnnie Henson and Mrs. J. C. Lowery.

Included Misses Delma Anderson, Mary Brooks, Peggy Smith, Helen Perkins, Monteen Brownlee, Irene Smith, Jacqueline Justin, Ruth Stanwich, Floodie Mobley, Jeanie Anglin, Lily Mae Hare, Colleen Bennett, Eise Knowles, Mary Lynn Davis, Jane Lowery and Messrs. Thomas Ballard, Norman Asch, Norman Morgan, David Stewart, Mack Vansant, Carl Whitaker, Lamar Wing, Roland Hudson, with their teachers, Miss Mary Lumpkin.

Another way to get the same effect is to have a fire screen frame made with a pedestal base so that it will stand up steadily. Cover this with chintz or needlepoint and see what you have.

You can buy tilt top tables that make lovely fire screens when their tops are painted with attractive floral designs. Or you can buy interesting folding firescreens in lacquer or some other pleasing finish.

The decorators often take a good sized piece of white or figured paper (flowered wall paper for instance) and pleated into a big gay fan and put this in the fireplace just back of the andirons to brighten up the effect.

Your Waistline, Sir!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

CHECK UP ON YOUR FOOD PREFERENCES. THEY TELL THE STORY ABOUT YOUR WEIGHT.

To hear them tell it, men are never "heavy" eaters and women are always "light" eaters, which makes it difficult to account for all the overweight.

There may be some truth in the contention that you do not overeat, but here is the catch—you eat the wrong foods. Almost invariably, weight trends parallel food habits, and if you are unable to explain an increase in your weight, look over the two lists below and place a check mark at the side of the dish you would naturally order. Be sure that you check the foods you really like, and not the ones you think I want you to like. Your choice between the two foods given on each line will tell the truth about your food habits.

Which do you order . . . This or That

Cream soup	Bouillon
Pork chops	Lamb chops
Candied sweet potatoes	Baked potato
Peas	Spinach
Head lettuce with Roquefort cheese dressing	Mixed vegetable salad
Hot biscuits	Whole wheat bread
Jelly	Relishes
Two pats butter	One pat butter
Apple pie	Fresh fruit
Coffee with cream, sugar	Clear coffee

Well, what is your score? If you have marked as many foods in the bouillon list as in the cream soup list, you are moderate in your food habits and your weight is probably normal. But if 75 per cent of the scoring is on the cream soup side, then fattening dishes are a habit with you.

Check your food habits; don't eat the wrong foods.

and, to put it mildly, you are not a "light" eater. Or, perhaps you liked everything on the first list. Then the probabilities are that your weight is around 20 per cent above normal—or, if not, it soon will be!

Although the two lists contain exactly the same number of courses, the cream soup menu contains conservatively 1,800 calories, the bouillon menu about 750 calories.

Food habits are the predominant cause of overweight. When you observe the eating tendencies of the people who regard themselves as "naturally" stout, you find that, in general, they like to eat what they prefer to the rich foods. The normal weights merely follow an inclination to choose foods from the lower caloric brackets.

There are two exceptions to this rule. The person who eats treacherously and remains lean and wiry, and the person who is careful about his or her food intake and still gains because of a short and stocky build with its low fuel requirements, do not bear out the general statement that food habits are the cause of overweight. You are not likely, however, to be either of these exceptions.

Going on a diet to change your weight is of little use unless you change the food habits which control your weight.

A Splendid Cream To Freshen Your Complexion and Stimulate Circulation

By LILLIAN MAE.

I've told you before about this marvelous cream, but it is one of those things that will bear telling about over and over.

According to the claims made by the manufacturer, it is composed of rare, costly oils gathered in foreign lands, so blended as to have "almost unbelievable powers."

Of course, I could not have known the source of the ingredients, but I do know that it has "almost unbelievable powers." It stimulates the cells to increased activity and improves circulation. Being very soft, it is readily absorbed, and penetrates far down into the underlying tissue and muscle structure, thus bringing about renewed vitality and firmness.

After your first treatment you will be surprised at the immediate fresh and vigorous feeling of your skin. After several treatments the youthful woman will observe a noticeable improvement in the texture of her skin, and the older one a very decided tightening of the lines of her face and throat.

Used after cleansing and toning your skin, you should leave it on for 20 minutes before removing with facial tissues. Follow this with another application of skin tonic, and you have a glorified complexion, ready for make-up.

Let me caution you not to get it too close to your eyes, for the cream it was very expensive. Not expensive either, for the work it accomplishes, but so it sounded at first. Since that time the price has been considerably reduced, and during this week only you can purchase it at a 20 per cent reduction on the new price.

There will be women and women taking advantage of this special price on such a fine item, so you'd better photo me for the name of the cream and the Atlanta stores at which it may be purchased, while there is a supply available. If you do not live in Atlanta, write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

THE MONOXIDE IN SMOKE. It seems quite conventional and what the public wants when a politician, temporarily out of office, orates on the subject of honesty in public life. But when a physician sounds off about medical "science" the humor is more subtle. I have been hot on the trail of science in medicine for many years. I do not go so far as to say there ain't no such animal, but I begin to believe it must be a most elusive creature.

Couple of Germans have been investigating the question of carbon monoxide in the smoke of cigarettes. Reminds me of an incident in old Mexico. On a trip from the capital up to Orizaba, when the train stopped for breath at a small village, a picturesque boy entertained with a plaintive solo on an odd-looking Mexican flute. Before the train pulled out one of the party had skillfully bargained with the boy and triumphantly bore away the flute for only five pesos. But when he excitedly showed his wife, the lady, being not of pure Aryan origin, made a horrible discovery. Marked as plain as plain on the little tin whistle were the words "Made in Germany." And so far into the light.

A prodigious quantity of medical "science" that has come out of Germany is like that odd-looking Mexican flute. I have been beguiled by it so many times that eventually I became a skeptic in reference to new remedies or new methods emanating from Germany. Whether it is the idiom or the temperament, somehow German physicians can describe a new remedy or method with the most convincing effect, and then when you have adopted it they will come out next season with a still newer remedy or method that is singularly free from the drawbacks, shortcomings or even dangers of last season's remedy or method, which, dangers, by the way, you had not suspected until now.

Anyway, A. Wenusch and R. Scholler report in Medizinische Klinik, Berlin, 2-11-38, that a cigarette weighing approximately 15 grains gives off 20 c.c. (about two-thirds of a fluid ounce) of carbon monoxide in the smoke. Distributed over an average of 20 drafts or puffs—that would be 1 c.c. (about one-fourth teaspoonful) of CO in each draft or puff of smoke. They estimate that one breath or inhalation of air carries a pint of air, and this is a fair estimate for the total air, the amount breathed with each quiet respiration. A pint is approximately 500 c.c. One c.c. or part of carbon monoxide in 500 c.c. or parts of air would be a monoxide concentration of 0.2 per cent, two parts in a thousand.

Now if a person breathes for any considerable period an atmosphere containing 0.2 per cent carbon monoxide he may die from carbon monoxide anoxia, according to Haldane. But these German investigators explain that between each inhalation of the 0.2 per cent of carbon monoxide the smoker draws seven or eight breaths of comparatively unpolluted air. As

Bridge Lite

By HAROLD SHARPSTEEN

NINE-SPOT LEADS.

From the moment the craze for "top of nothing" leads swept over this country and drifted across the Atlantic to Britain and lands beyond the seas, the nine-spot has been a marked card . . . unimaginative . . . outspoken . . . stereotyped and finger-printed as the fore-runner of a worthless suit.

No "blind" opening lead is easier for defending partner . . . or for declarer . . . to read than a nine-spot opening.

Pursuing the modern theory of conventional opening leads, a nine-spot opening . . . against suit or notrump . . . no bid from partner . . . is never taken as a fourth-best lead.

DENIES HONOR LEAD. Partner also knows from the nine-spot lead that leader's hand does not contain a sequence lead in any suit, or the sequence would have been opened in preference.

There can be but one answer . . . the nine-spot signifies a short or worthless suit . . . sometimes described as a "waiting" or "warning" lead. Leader does not wish to surrender a tenace position in his hand or to reduce protection for high cards held in other suits. The nine opening many times warns partner that leader's hand contains a trump suit and that partner must assume all responsibility for defeating the contract.

NEVER FOURTH-BEST.

When the nine is fourth-best in a suit there must be necessarily three higher cards held in the suit. Remove any two of the five higher cards . . . A K Q J 10 . . . to leave a nine fourth-best . . . and the suit still contains a preference honor-lead, as Q J 10 . . . K J 10 . . . K Q J 10 . . . A J 10 . . . K Q J 10 . . . A J 10 . . . K Q J 10 . . .

How many cards leader holds originally in the worthless suit is defending partner's only problem. With no entry cards to bring in the suit, should it be established, the nine is led from the top of four worthless cards . . . naturally from the top of a worthless doubleton . . . and, in standard practice, from the top of a worthless tripleton.

MIDDLE CARD LEAD. Against suit contracts, when the middle card is high enough so as not to be confused as a fourth best, as when holding 8 8 2, the eight may be opened, playing "up" with the nine on the second round to indicate one more card held originally in the suit.

Defending partner leads up to dummy's weakness, following a nine-spot opening, lacking an established suit of his own.

SLACK ENSEMBLE WITH A NAUTICAL FLAVOR.

Relax in slacks this summer, whether you plan to engage in strenuous sports or plan nothing more energetic than a few country walks. Pattern No. 1328-B is an unusually well-cut, easy-to-tailor design, with slacks in the authentic sailor manner—wide at the foot and slim at the waist and hips.

This pattern includes both a topper and skirt to accompany the slacks. The skirt, open at the throat, smooth shouldered, with short straight sleeves also can be worn with a tailored suit. Make the slacks of denim, duck, gabardine or jersey; the blouse and topper of linen, percale, broadcloth or shantung.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1328-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 2-1/4 yards of 38-inch material for the slacks; 1-7/8 yards for the blouse. One yard for the topper. A detailed sew chart accompanies this pattern.

Kentucky Club Charter Members Give Tea at Mrs. Denman's Home

By Sally Forth.

MESDAMES G. B. DENMAN, Edmund B. Hume, C. B. Milner and J. R. Mell, who compose the "old guard" and charter members of the Kentucky Club, gave a reception for members recently at the home of Mrs. Denman on Westminster drive. It was a gala occasion and the vari-colored flowers beautifying the house were culled from the gardens of the hostesses who are active in the enterprises and activities of the club.

Little Jane Dozier was at the door and had all the guests sign their names in the guest book. In the solarium, Elizabeth Penn Hammond, attractive young granddaughter of Mrs. Denman; Elsie York, Virginia Milner and Lucy Hill Doty, students of Agnes Scott College, dispensed punch from a handsome crystal bowl.

The lace-covered table in the dining room was beautified with a graceful arrangement of flowers, and Mrs. Murray Howard poured coffee from an antique silver service. Silver platters filled with "Old Kentucky" ham tempted the appetites of guests, and other delectable dishes, and friends who enjoyed the real old-time hospitality of the hostesses.

LITTLE JUNE and Jane LaFontaine, six-year-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. LaFontaine, have been the recipients of fan letters from all over the country ever since their picture, taken against an attractive background of peach blossoms, was carried by the Associated Press in a large number of newspapers.

One of the most interesting of these letters is the one they received just the other day from Lucille and Lois Marlow, 13-year-old twins who have lived in Burlington, Iowa, since the terrible dust storms drove them from their home in South Dakota.

It seems that while June and Jane have a birthday on March 19, the Iowa twins celebrate theirs on November 19. Lucille and Lois saw the picture of the LaFontaine children in an Iowa paper and at once decided that they wanted them for "pen pals."

Their interesting letter explained that they lived in the country and attended a school so small that it has only eight pupils. There are seven members in their family and they are all interested in these attractive Atlanta twins. As they come in contact with so few people, they are quite excited over the idea of starting a correspondence with someone in far-away Atlanta.

For Miss Schilling.

Mrs. Charles Schilling entertained on Saturday at a buffet luncheon at her home on Peachtree road complimenting her sister, Miss Connie Schilling, bride-elect. Mrs. Walter Schilling, of Marietta, mother of the honor guest, assisted in entertaining.

The beautifully appointed lace-covered table was centered with a mound of white roses placed on a mirror and circled by a miniature bride and groom and 12 bridesmaids of pink and green icing.

Present were, in addition to the hostess and honor guest, Misses Jesse Lee Lynn, Margaret Knott, Sarah Knott, Madge Schilling, Suzanne Howell, Doushka Brown, Eleanor Hutchinson, Tillie Trezvant, Elizabeth Hodges, Mrs. Jack Hodges, Mrs. Madison Fowler Jr. and Mrs. Walter Schilling.

For Miss Bellinger.

Miss Florence Bellinger, whose marriage to Adolph Beckmann will take place on July 2, was honor guest at the luncheon given Saturday by Mrs. Kendall Jordan, of Atlanta and Albany. Pastel shaded flowers graced the center of the table.

Invited to meet Miss Bellinger were Mesdames H. E. Doster, John Poole, Monroe Butler and Sam Hubbard.

THE FEAR OF CANCER

By Miner & Carter DRUGGISTS

People sometimes cause themselves needless worry and anxiety through dread of cancer. Family history may have brought about this fear, and on the other hand there may be some health condition which causes the worry.

Banish fear by consulting a good doctor without delay. Ten to one he will diagnose the ailment as some perfectly curable and easily corrected condition which will respond to treatment.

A doctor is always glad to recommend a thoroughly reliable and competent druggist to fill the prescription should a prescription be necessary.

Receiving with Mrs. Conger and Mrs. Dean will be Mrs. George Bland and assisting in entertaining will be Mesdames Fred Gould, William Percy, Carol Payne Jones, Dan Clarke, Roy Gentry, Miss Mary Jane Gentry and Miss Margie Conger.

Favorite Subjects On Gardening Will Be Featured

Book reports on favorite subjects on gardening will be handed in by the garden clubs during June. These reports should prove interesting reading, and the books themselves will be on display with the reports at the Garden Center.

Recent console table arrangements include a low white pottery bowl filled with larkspur, feverfew, and sweetpeas, entered for Oakland City Garden Club by Mrs. W. G. Stewart. A gray pottery vase holding pink Sherry poppies centered the arrangement of Mrs. E. N. O'Brien, for Neighborhood Garden Club, and a pair of Sheffield candlesticks and a candle-snuffer added to the composition. For Linwood Garden Club, Mrs. William Reed used a blue jar to hold roses, branches of cherries and English honeysuckle. On one side was placed a pair of Chinese book-ends.

An arrangement of galliardias and Spirea atillie in a copper luster pitcher was the entry of Mrs. R. F. Lyon and Mrs. O. W. Deysole for Azalia Garden Club, and a small album, and a brass candle-holder completed the grouping. A white bowl holding a figurine and filled with corn flowers and calliopsis was entered by Mrs. S. J. Sheehan for the Bird and Flower Club, the arrangement being completed by orange candles in white holders and an orange ash tray. Red geraniums and artemisia Silver King in a pewter teapot made the stunning entry of Mrs. Clyde Williams for Primrose Garden Club.

Vari-colored Phlox drummond, in a copper pitcher, a small leather book, and a Godey print composed the well-balanced arrangement of Mrs. J. A. Northcutt and Mrs. R. M. Lester, for the garden division of College Park Woman's Club. Mrs. George C. Griffin, for Planter's Garden Club, arranged apricot dahlias, Memorial daisies, and the waxy leaves of Burford holly in an old Chinese crackle ginger jar, and pewter book-ends and ash trays were the well chosen accessories. A pale blue fluted Victorian bowl was chosen by Mrs. T. E. Murray, of Piedmont Garden Club, to hold fringed pampas in tones of rose and blue delphinium. A worn leather book was the interesting accessory.

An attractive arrangement of usual garden flowers in a pair of Dr. Williams' cups was entered for the Avondale Garden Club by Mrs. Edward Traylor and a matching plate on a stand was placed between them.

Garden Club hostesses for this week are: Monday, Rose; Wednesday, Druid Hills, East Lake; Thursday, Gardeners' Forum, Kirkwood Homemakers, Garden Division of Decatur Woman's Club; Friday, Gladiolus, Habersham, Narcissus.

Recent visitors to the center were Mesdames Carr McCormack, New Castle, Ala.; Charles Upshaw, Alpharetta; Helena Johnson, Nashville; W. H. Peacock, Powell Stephens, Thomaston; Jerome W. Fuller, Provoeville, Ohio; Walter C. Cunnard, Westville, N. J.

McDonald Is Skeet Shoot Winner

Luther McDonald won high gun honors and the silver trophy in the practice shoot for the Georgia State Skeet championship held at the West End Gun Club yesterday.

McDonald won the honors by virtue of a two-way shoot-off against himself. Harry Harkins and Clint Davis. McDonald was tied with Harkins for the scratch trophy at 49 each and was tied with Davis at 52 on the second round.

With a chance at winning either trophy with preference on the scratch, McDonald went out in the shoot-off and posted a 25 straight to win over 24's by both Harkins and Davis. This gave McDonald the high gun trophy with Harkins as runner-up.

With a chance at winning either trophy with preference on the scratch, McDonald went out in the shoot-off and posted a 25 straight to win over 24's by both Harkins and Davis. This gave McDonald the high gun trophy with Harkins as runner-up.

There was no doubt yesterday but what the boys were really taking their final practice shoots in a serious manner. This year's shoot will crown a new champion as all past champions are either ineligible or out of the running and a real race is expected.

Harry Harkins turned in the best piece of shooting for the amateurs over the 100-bird route with his 98 and Luther McDonald showed that he was right again with his over-all score of 743.75.

This youngster stands a chance to win both the state and junior crown. Dr. LeRoy Childs was hot with his 28 gauge, turning in a 48 with his small-bore gun. A definite favorite in the coming championship, Childs contented himself with the small gauge practice yesterday due to a delay in shipping his "meat gun" from the factory where it has been overhauled for next week's 250-bird grand.

Complete scores were as follows: Luther Davis, 50; Luther McDonald, 49; Harry Harkins, 49; Clint Davis, 48; Dr. LeRoy Childs, 48; Gene Quill, 48; Lynn Smith, 47; Mrs. E. J. C. E. 47; A. J. Jones, 47; Mary Baldwin, 47; Dr. Jesse York, 46; H. J. Ayers, 47; Dr. James Black, 47; Julian Smith, 47; C. D. McGough, 47; J. I. Brown, 47; Swift Tyler, 47; C. D. Mason, 47.

25 BIRD SCORES: A. W. Thrift, 22; Glover Thomas, 21; Dr. O. T. Malone, 19; C. P. Bruce, 14; O. A. Riley, 12; Homer Peoples, 11; N. E. Mitchell, 8.

Paul Brown Winner In Memphis Race

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 29.—Paul Brown, of Atlanta, took first place in the elimination race here this afternoon and third place in the midwest championship motorcycle race.

Brown turned the one-half mile dirt track in 33 seconds. After a late start he held first place in the elimination race.

In the 10-mile midwest championship Brown kept up with Jones, of Marian, Ind., and Hayes, of Dallas, Texas, making them ride hard and fast to keep in the lead.

Five thousand motorcycle fans witnessed the event and it was the first race held in Memphis in several years.

Bill Martin, another Atlanta rider, spilled before the race and was injured trying out the track.

Finn McCool Pulled Up the Trees, Sharpened Them, Dipped Them In a Lake of Ink

SOMEWHERE AT SEA, May 29.—(By Wireless)—Looking back on Charlie Yates' superb play in the British amateur, the fact becomes self-evident that at no time in history has any one golfer so completely mastered the first nine as he did at Troon.

Only once during the tournament did his first nine score soar above par and that was on one of the worst days any golfer ever tried to shoot championship golf.

A recapitulation shows he was nine under par on the outgoing nine for the week. He mastered that side to such an extent that on only one hole—the seventh—did he fail to shoot a birdie.

The 24-year-old youngster from the East Lake Country Club, Atlanta, had never played on a Scottish course before. And he met the test of the narrow wind-swept course with a courage and skill that commands the respect and admiration of the entire golfing world.

Charlie accepted all the praise and fuss that accompanied his great performance with a becoming modesty.

He refused to be placed in the same class with Bob Jones, his fellow townsman who won the amateur in 1930.

And he gave the lion's share of the credit to his teacher, George Sargent, who taught him how to master the irons; how to keep his shots low in the wind, and how to make his putter pay dividends for him.

It was of Sargent, his teacher, that he thought first as the yells of the gallery roared in his ears and hands were reaching out from all sides to offer congratulations on a wonderful job.

The eyes of the golfing world will be upon him when he starts play in the Walker cup matches next week at historic St. Andrews. They know now that he has the game and the courage to match anything the game can offer.

NO PLACE FOR WORK. CASTLEFINN, County Donegal, Ireland.—(By Mail).—They thought it was a grand idea for work. Just go off into the north of Ireland to the Free State county of Donegal and there—in a small village—just sit down and get off all those articles you missed by going off to Vienna for Mr. Hitler's plebiscite.

Well, for two weeks I sat on the old stone fence down near the River Finn. Now and then the young ram, which is a pet, would come up and "Baaa" to be played with. I taught him to run and butt at an extended hand like a football player's stiff arm. He liked it.

Something happens in Ireland. Mr. Ezekiel Stewart, up at the village store, assured me it is not laziness. It is contemplation, he said, and it does the inner man much good to sit and contemplate.

Well, I don't know. There is something in the atmosphere of Ireland. The gorse is golden yellow across the hills and the hawthorne is blooming in the fence rows. The larks bound up to the sky, in those eccentric bounces, singingly madly. There are cows in the green meadows. And sheep. Down the road, now and then, there comes an ancient, gray donkey, pulling a cart piled with turf, newly come from the drying fields. Or an old woman with a huge black shawl sits atop a cart of sticks. Over across the hills the clouds tumble up into curious shapes, like some celestial parade of queer animals.

A salmon leaps from a dark pool in the river and the splash is loud in the silence. The cows come up and contemplate you with their large, sad and, happily, unaccusing eyes.

Far off on a distant hill someone is burning the gorse. The smoke climbs up and until the blue conquers it. The dark ridges of the hills waver across the sky. There is something in the air from the peat bogs and from the fences of stone, centuries old; from the old stone houses; there was religion and a culture here when the Britons were barbarians in the cold hills of the stormy little isle; it has drenched the atmosphere of the country with something. I can understand why Ireland believes in "the wee folk." The hours drift by. The pet lamb wants to be stiff-armed. The cocker spaniel from the house wanders through the fields, daring a rabbit to get up. The birds sing in the fence row. The smell of the hawthorne blossoms rides down the wind.

For two weeks I sat on a stone fence, talking and listening and contemplating. There often were people who would climb on the wall for a talk or for a spell of contemplation.

A bell rings across the fields and you leave your fence and walk back past the straw stacks, thatched and tied, toward the house where there is tea and fresh-made cakes and strawberry jam.

"Aren't you going to do any work?"

"Well, you see, there is a man who is coming by the fence today who is going to tell me about the time that Finn McCool, the Irish Giant, pulled up the trees and sharpened them and dipped them in a lake of ink to write a letter to the Scottish Giant, McDonald."

"You and your Giants?"

"Well, and indeed, wasn't it Finn McCool that started the Giants' Causeway so that he and McDonald would have an easy time of it going to fight one another?" We saw the causeway the other day and a wonderful piece of work it is, too. "Now, this man who is coming this afternoon has a grandmother who saw the wee folk once. They were in green coats and there were two of them under a tree. He is going to take me to see her and when that is done there will be time to work."

The days are long. One can read a newspaper at nine o'clock at night with only the light from the sky. They will get longer yet.

If he can get through with his plowing there is coming a man who knows the story of the hunting dog that could catch the wild geese in the air. And that is a story that none of the Georgia field trial men know. The hound belonged to Finn McCool and when it was whelped a strange dark man drove a

RAIN FORECAST BUT 160,000 DUE TO SEE CLASSIC

Wilbur Shaw, Louis Myer, Bill Cummings, Kelly Pettillo Entered.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 29.—(AP) Thirty-three of America's greatest automobile race drivers, ranging from Rookie Joel Thorne to the aging Ira Hall, will roar away from the starting line at 10 o'clock (C. S. T.) tomorrow morning in the 26th annual 500-mile Indianapolis motor speedway race.

For approximately four and a half hours they will fight a battle of speed over the two-and-a-half-mile brick and asphalt track. To the winner will go checks that will total approximately $35,000. First prize itself is worth $20,000. Lap and accessory awards make up the remainder.

T. E. (Pop) Myers, speedway general manager, predicted tonight the attendance would run in the neighborhood of 160,000.

The only possible difficulty was the weather. The United States bureau here forecast thunder-showers for tomorrow. If it rains during the race the cars are slowed down to about 60 miles an hour and they must hold their positions until the track is dry.

Only once in history has it been necessary to postpone a race. One other time the event had to be stopped at 400 miles because of rain.

SHAW'S RECORD. Speedway officials and drivers predicted it would take a speed of 115 to 116 miles an hour to win the race. Last year Wilbur Shaw, of Indianapolis, hit a record, breaking 113.580 miles an hour in riding to first place.

Shaw is one of four former winners who will face the starter. The others are Louis Myer, of Huntington Park, Cal., three times a victor; Bill Cummings, of Indianapolis, and Kelly Pettillo, of Los Angeles, Cal.

Everyone of them is in the list of favorites for this year's event. Myer and Cummings will drive new cars. Shaw will have the same speedster in which he won last year and Pettillo the same car in which he won in 1935.

Two foreign-built cars will be among the starters. An Alfa Romeo will be driven by youthful Rex May, of Glendale, Cal., and a Maserati will have Mauri Rose, of Columbus, Ohio, at the wheel.

Both figured as possible winners, but May's car is capable of greater speed than Rose's.

BEAT 120 MILES. The prediction of record speed was based largely on time shown in the qualifying trials. Eighteen of the 33 starters averaged better than 120 miles an hour in 25-mile qualifying runs.

The old track record of 125.287 miles an hour for qualification was broken twice. Floyd Roberts, of Van Nuys, Cal., averaged 125.681 May 21 and the next day Ronney Householder, a neighbor of Roberts, hit the mark to 125.769 miles an hour.

Tonight Indianapolis took on its customary race day atmosphere. Long lines of automobiles arrived from every state in the union.

One car has been waiting at the speedway gate since May 2. Tonight its driver had a lot of company. The line strung out for miles. Fans spent the night playing cards, singing and visiting.

Hotels were jammed.

Dan O'Mahony And Dusek Head Big-Time Lineup

Although Princess Baba, beautiful daughter of the White Rajah of Sarawak, will be present, occupying a specially erected box seat, Danno O'Mahony and Ernie Dusek are expected to concentrate on the business of trying to destroy one another.

Frank Speer and Dorv Roche, old rivals, continue their feud in a semi-final that looms as a thriller.

Bob Gregory, husband of Princess Baba and light-heavyweight champion of England, meets Pierre LaBelle, Canadian, in a special bout. The Princess and her man will land at Candler Field Wednesday morning and Governor Rivers and Mayor Hartsfield are expected to meet them at the field.

Billy Hazelhurst Dies; Ex-Bulldog Grid Star

MACON, Ga., May 29.—(AP)—William (Billy) Hazelhurst, 27, former Lanier High and University of Georgia star athlete, died at City-County hospital in LaGrange early this morning.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hazelhurst, of Macon, Hazelhurst had been employed in the office of the Callaway Mills in LaGrange since his graduation from the university in 1933.

Members of his family here said he had been ill a week of typhus fever. Funeral services will be at 3 p. m. Tuesday here.

At Lanier, Hazelhurst was a guard on the football team, and captain of an R. O. T. C. company.

Although smaller than the average linesman, he was developed into one of the most aggressive guards ever coached by Harry Mehre at Georgia. At the university he also was president of Phi Delta Theta society, fraternity and of the Pan-Hellenic Council. He was a member of Sphinx, Gridiron, Pelican and other honorary organizations on the Athens campus.

'WHAT A CORNY TOWN!'—SAYS ELEPHANT JOE

Joe Engel made a fetching picture as he walked into the Cracker park yesterday carrying an umbrella. He was very expressive on the subject. "What a corny town!" he said. "Imagine having to bring an umbrella to the ball park. But anything can happen in Atlanta." Clearing skies failed to arouse any enthusiasm in Elephant Joe because the Crackers split even in a doubleheader and Joe now is expected to carry out his threat of diving off the Hurt building into a cuspidor if the Lookouts failed to take both games. The act, according to Joe will take place at noon today.

Crackers, Lookouts Afraid of Dread Malady; Street Department Fears Jump by Engel—If He Lands on His Head.

By Jack Troy

Queen Mahooga, direct from the Belgian Congo, will take part in the wild African elephant hunt Tuesday night at the ball park, Joe Engel announced yesterday.

"The queen has cannibalistic tendencies," Engel pointed out, "so before the hunt we'll cook a sailor in a pot to feed her."

A dozen of the 18 entries hail from Atlanta's clubs, and spent most of Sunday at their own clubs, getting ready for Tuesday's play.

Engel, who strolled into the park with an umbrella, said, "I ought to know better than to come to this corny town."

"But what do I care about rain. I'm like Rupert and Yawkey. Money is no object. Baseball is just a hobby with me," Engel continued.

Joe has had a fine response to his ad for hay to feed the animals. Here is an excerpt of one letter he received from south Georgia.

"Dear Sir:

"We have 12 tons of peanut hay that we can deliver to you at Atlanta, Ga., for $15 per ton, by our trucks. We also have 25 tons of choice well cured peaving (cowpea) hay that we can offer you at $25 per ton delivered to Atlanta."

"Should you be interested in this hay, please wire us and we will start deliveries at once. Trusting that you will favor us with your valued order, etc."

18 Practice Today For National Open
Eighteen golfers, seeking two places in the National Open sectional qualifying rounds Tuesday on the No. 1 East Lake will practice today.

BOBBITT BEATS BOLAND, 6-3, 6-3

MARIETTA, Ga., May 29.—In a sparkling exhibition of tennis before local fans at Marietta Golf Club this afternoon Russell Bobbitt, Georgia Tech star, downed Dr. Kells Boland, of Atlanta, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, in a singles exhibition.

Bobbitt paired with Red Enloe, of Atlanta, to beat Preston J. Lake and Chambers two out of three sets, 7-5, 2-6, 6-2, in the doubles exhibition which followed.

Red Montgomery, club tennis manager, said additional exhibitions were planned during the summer.

Marietta Golfers Hold Qualifying

Mauldin Is Set At Second Base.
Manager Paul Richards predicted yesterday that in another three or four weeks Marshall Mauldin will be the best second baseman in the league.

"Yep, he's set at second. He is playing very steady ball and is improving all the time. He'll be the league's best in a short time," Richards said.

Mauldin said he wouldn't have to hit 350 now. "Second baseman aren't supposed to be sluggers," he declared.

"Forget about that," Richards declared. "Hit as much as you can. It's pretty nice in the big leagues."

PEBS TAKE TWO TO REGAIN LEAD BY HALF A GAME

Dynamite Dunn, Dee Miles Homer; Third Game This Afternoon.

By JACK TROY.

The Crackers and Lookouts started out playing in the rain yesterday and ended up in the sunshine and a deadlock in their double-header at Ponce de Leon park.

Bill Beckman scored his sixth win of the season as Atlanta won the opener, 9 to 5. Beckman weakened toward the end and Tom Sunkel relieved in the ninth. He ended the threat.

Despite the fact that the Lookouts hit seven doubles and a homer and amassed 14 hits to the Crackers' nine in the first game, there was very little doubt about the winner after the first inning.

OUTSTANDING
RICHARDS—MAULDIN.

In which the Crackers scored four runs off Dick Bass who finally retired for a pinch-hitter in the fourth. Both Pebeus and Hayes saw action.

INVINCIBLE JIM.
Big Jim Lindsey, former Cracker, was invincible in the second game, shutting the door in the Crackers' faces, 5 to 0. It was the second time the Richards Rifles had been shut out this season. The first time was on May 6 at New Orleans.

John Michaels was shelled from the mound in the third and Ted Pritchett finished.

Lindsey, in fine form, allowed his old mates only six hits and never was in trouble. The closest approach to a scoring threat came in the fourth when Johnny Hill tripled with one man away. Dunn and Sunkel failed to get him home.

A crowd of 6,750 attended the twin bill which, for a time, was threatened by a heavy downpour. However, the teams started playing in the rain and soon the skies cleared and the fans saw two fine games.

Giants Beat Phils To Boast Lead; A's Upset Yanks Again, 11-9

LUCAS OUTHURLS FRENCH AS BUCS DEFEAT CUBS, 2-1

Dodgers Nip Bees in 13th, 1-0; Cards Blank Reds, 3-0.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Giants tagged Bucky Walters for four runs in the first inning and then hung on to nip the Phillies, 7 to 6, and increase their National league lead to 3 1/2 games over the Chicago Cubs.

Walters went the route for the Phils. Although he contributed a two-run homer and his mates belted Harry Gumbert, the Giant starter, to the showers, the Quaker City outfit never was able to catch up. Gumbert, who gave way to big Walt Brown, was credited with his fourth win against three defeats.

Red Lucas, Pittsburgh's veteran right-hander, bested Chicago's Larry French in a hurling duel, 4-1, to end the Pirates' losing streak and the Cubs winning stretch with a 2-to-1 triumph. Arky Vaughan hit a homer and a double to bring in both Pirate runs.

Ernie Koy singled home the winning run with two out in the thirteenth inning to give the Brooklyn Dodgers a 10-0 triumph over the Boston Bees. It was Brooklyn's second straight over the Bees by a one-run margin.

Behind the two-hit pitching of Bob Weiland, St. Louis Cardinals broke their seven-game losing streak here with a 3-0 victory over the Reds.

- CRACKERS -

er attack in the second game, the Crackers took three hits in four trips. Miles, Singlet, Alexander and Millies got two hits each for Chattanooga. The even break cost the Crackers the lead and pushed Chattanooga down to third place as Little Rock won a double-header over Memphis.

The first game was featured by Chattanooga's long-distance hitting in the pinches and the fielding of Mauldin, Malho, Peters and Gill, who made a great one-handed catch of a Texas leaguer.

The teams played again today at 4 o'clock. Larry Miller is scheduled to hurl for the Crackers. The Chattanooga choice was not made known.

ATTACK EARLY.

In the first game, the Crackers took out after the Elephants in the first inning, staging a four-run outburst. After Mauldin fanned, Malho, Alexander and Millies singled and Rose also singled, scoring Malho. Hill singled to center, scoring Richards, and when the ball eluded Miles, Rose also scored and Hill went to third. Hill scored after Gill's falling catch of Dunn's short fly. Rucker fanned.

The Lookouts scored one in the second when Alexander doubled and Hitchcock drove him home with a single.

Malho's double, Richards' sacrifice and Bass' wild pitch gave the Crackers their fifth run in the third.

Doubles by Alexander and Honeycutt supplied the second Look-out run in the fourth. Bass was removed for a pinch-hitter.

The Crackers also scored one in their half. Rucker forced Dunn, Peters walked and Beckman's single to center sent Rucker scrambling home.

MILES HOMERS.

Miles' long homer over the last row of signs in right provided the third Lookout run in the seventh. In the fifth Dunn hit a line-drive home run into the left-field stands for the seventh Cracker tally.

Richards' single and Hill's double gave the Crackers their eighth run in the seventh.

The Lookouts scored their fourth and fifth runs in the eighth. Singlet doubled and advanced to third on Malho's great jumping catch of Alexander's drive. Honeycutt's single scored. Singlet, Hitchcock doubled with Honeycutt stopping at third and Honeycutt scored on Miles' infield out.

PHIBUS RETIRES.

Phibus retired for a pinch hitter in that inning and Hayes faced the Crackers. Peters singled. Beckman bunted and Hayes threw the ball away at first. Peters scoring and Beckman taking third.

The Lookouts kept on going and knocked Beckman out of the box

FERRELL BEATS RED SOX TO WIN HIS SEVENTH, 5-3

Senators Move Ahead of Yanks; Rollie Hemley Breaks Finger.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Philadelphia Athletics won their second straight game from the New York Yankees, 11-9, yesterday, knocking the daylights out of Monte Pearson and Bump Hadley in two innings. Bill Dickey homered in the ninth with one aboard.

Cletus Poffenberger shaded Monty Stratton in a hurlers' duel as the Chicago White Sox, 2 to 1, before a crowd of 16,000 and swept the three-game series. Poffenberger yielded only four hits, all singles, for his fourth victory.

Wesley Ferrell pitched his seventh victory in four seasons against the Red Sox and the Washington Senators moved into third place ahead of the New York Yankees. The score was 5 to 3.

The St. Louis Browns staved off an eighth inning rally to beat the Cleveland Indians, 8 to 6. Heath and Earl Averill banged out home runs for the Indians. It was Buck Newsom's fifth win of the season for the Browns.

Rollie Hemley, Cleveland catcher, broke the little finger on his right hand on Earl Whitehill's first pitch.

TARZAN AND THE FORBIDDEN CITY No. 13

Atan Thome quivered with delight as he held in his hands the route map to the Forbidden City of Athair. There, in the unknown mountains, guarded by the fierce, mysterious race, was the Father of Diamonds. He'd take it from them, by stealth or force.

Now Thome swung into action. He called Lal Taak. "Go tell the captain of the river boat to be ready. I've already bribed him to sail tonight instead of tomorrow. That will leave the Gregory stranded. There won't be another sailing for a week."

Lal Taak left. Thome turned to Magra. "You must tell the Gregory party by any route. Convince to delay them. I know you're strong for that bronzed Apollo; but if you double-cross me, I'll get you both. No traitor has ever escaped Atan Thome!"

He went then to the room where Helen was a prisoner. Her eyes lighted when she saw the map. "Now you will let me go." "No," said Thome; "you'll come with me to Athair; I'll keep you as a hostage. Besides, I'll enjoy your company." Helen shivered.

ER NAMES PAL IN BRICK SLAYING; ACCUSED IN TURN

Says He Was Present When Georgian's Daughter
Met Death.

CHICAGO, May 29.—(AP)—Confessions that he slew one Chicago woman with a brick and that he was present when another was similarly killed, were attributed by the authorities to Robert Nixon, alias Thomas Crosby, 19-year-old negro.

Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle said Nixon confessed late last night that he bludgeoned Mrs. Florence Thompson Castle, 24, a night club hostess, to death in her hotel room June 29, 1937, and that he was in the home of Mrs. Florence Johnson, 34, wife of a city fireman, when she was beaten to death with a brick last Friday morning, Mrs. Johnson's father, John L. Whitton, is a resident of Columbus, Ga.

Nixon, who the police said, was implicated by fingerprints in the killings April 4, 1937, of Mrs. Edna Worden and her daughter, Marguerite, 12, in Los Angeles, confessed, Boyle said, that he entered Mrs. Johnson's south side apartment to rob the place, but named Earl Hicks, 19, another negro, as the slayer.

Hicks accuses Nixon. Hicks, who was seized by the police last night, accused Nixon as Mrs. Johnson's slayer, the prosecutor said, declaring Nixon struck the woman when she awakened and screamed.

Mrs. Castle was slain in the presence of her 7-year-old son, Jimmy. The case, which is a new turn when investigators found the words "Black Legion" scrawled with lipstick on a mirror in Mrs. Castle's room. The police said Nixon admitted he was the man who wrote on the mirror.

Meanwhile the police said they were advised by Los Angeles authorities that Nixon's fingerprints corresponded with those found at the scene of the Worden killings. Nixon denied any connection with the Los Angeles crimes. Detective Chief John L. Sullivan said, "I have denied a dozen attacks on other women in that city."

Fingerprints furnished the link with the slaying of Mrs. Castle, Sullivan said. He said partial prints left in Mrs. Castle's room tallied with Nixon's.

Nixon is also suspected of the slaying of Miss Anna Kuchta, student nurse in a Chicago hospital, who was beaten to death with a brick on August 20, 1937, but prosecutor Boyle said he would not be questioned further about this crime until details of Mrs. Johnson's death were cleared up.

Bricks were the instruments of death in all of the cases, including the Los Angeles killings.

C. D. SMITH, 64, DIES;
FINAL RITES TODAY

Burial Will Be in Cherokee County.

Charles D. Smith, 64, of 1127 Glenwood avenue, S. E., died in a private hospital yesterday afternoon following a long illness. He had been partially paralyzed for more than three years.

A native of Bascom, in Cherokee county, Mr. Smith moved here while he was a child and had made his home here since.

He was a member of the board of stewards of the Martha Brown Memorial church for many years.

Surviving are four sisters, Misses Maggie L., Ruth T. and Julia G. Smith, with whom he lived, and Mrs. Charles J. G. Cates, and a brother, Sam B. Smith, of Bolton.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Martha Brown Memorial church, conducted by the Rev. W. T. Hunnicutt. Burial will be in the Cherokee Methodist cemetery, Cherokee county.

Suspects Accuse Each Other in Brick Death

Chicago police believed last night they had solved the murder of Mrs. Florence Johnson, 34-year-old wife of a city fireman and mother of two children, whose body was found in her south side home. Above picture shows the victim with her 18-month-old son, Kenneth.

G.A.R. Veteran, 92, Blames Women For 'Refighting' War Between States

Asserts Daughters of the Confederacy Still Call Us 'Damyankes'

LOWELL, Mass., May 29.—(AP)—"Uncle" Dudley L. Page, this city's most active G. A. R. veteran and junior vice commander of the state unit, has what he thinks is a new angle on Memorial Day.

Let the north and the south, for one thing, bury the hatchet for good—particularly the women folk, for this white-haired, 92-year-old veteran of Chancellorsville and Gettysburg insists:

"It's the Daughters of the Confederacy who won't let bygones be bygones. The women still call us 'damnyankes.' The southern boys have forgotten about the fighting long ago, just like our boys, and we ought to be having bully times together."

To prove how he feels about it, he will attend the 75th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg next month to chin about campaigns with his old buddies of the 33rd Massachusetts regiment, which he joined as a farmer boy from Tewksbury.

He had some other ideas as he donned his old blue uniform for Memorial Day.

Let young people stop muttering about hard times and pioneer like War Between the States veterans did when they pushed westward during the reconstruction, suggested Page. He came back from the war, started a little side-street taffy shop and built it up into a big candy business.

"Let them develop some new idea. Let them get away from the idea they have to do just the thing they studied for," he advised.

Page started as a farmer boy, got a degree in medicine from Jefferson College and then wound up in the candy business.

"I never practiced medicine. When my horse got sick, I called in a horse doctor. But my studies helped me prolong my life and kept me from going to quacks!"

"Uncle" Dudley, still "pert" enough to shovel the snow from in front of his store in the winter, had a word for the oldsters, too.

"Let them get together for good government. There's too much big talk from both Democrats and Republicans," says the man who registered his vote in the Lincoln Abraham Lincoln.

"When Lincoln was elected, there were four parties and none of them was too cocky. If people who want good government would forget the Republicans and Democrats and go out and vote for a man favorable to private industry, everybody would be better off."

LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT TO SPEAK IN ATHENS

ATHENS, Ga., May 29.—(AP)—Albert Davis Taylor, president of the American Society of Landscape Architecture, Cleveland, Ohio, will deliver three lectures at the third annual garden school at the University of Georgia, June 15-17.

He is a member of the United States Housing Authority, an authority on town planning and park development, and has served as landscape architect on several college campuses.

WAR DEAD TODAY NATION TO HONOR

Gettysburg Prepares for Reunion of Veterans of Blue and Gray.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 29.—(AP)—The little town of Gettysburg stirred with unusual activity tonight as the nation prepared to honor America's war dead.

Little more than a month hence, the life-worn remnants of the soldiers of the blue and the gray will return for a meeting on the battlefield where thousands of markers and monuments record the sacrifice they and their comrades made in the historic days of the sixties.

The forthcoming reunion gave increased significance to the annual Memorial Day observance in the battlefield cemetery.

Military and civic organizations will march up the lane tomorrow that once separated the cannon of Lee and Meade, winding to the blast of martial music into the cemetery where so many who fought here found lasting peace.

Vandenberg to Speak.
At the foot of a marble column where Abraham Lincoln pronounced his immortal address, the words will be read anew.

Arthur H. Vandenberg, Michigan's senator, will speak.

But tomorrow's observance will be only a prelude to the great national observance, June 29 to July 6, in recognition of the 75th anniversary of the battle.

A scant 8,000 remain of the Federals and Confederates who clashed here in the first three days of July, 1863.

During the week of the observance the federal government will marshal these veterans, some 1,200 from the North and 200 from the South, to pay new tribute to their valor at the joint reunion.

On the flowered plains below Gettysburg, looking toward Oak Ridge, a tent camp to house the aging visitors nears completion. Near the new $60,000 "Eternal Peace" monument, the two camps—one for each side—will be completely equipped with electric lights, boardwalks, mess halls, social tents and medical units.

The peace memorial, which President Roosevelt will dedicate July 3, awaits only the finishing touches on its sculpture. From its bronze urn will rise a perpetual flame, visible for 20 miles.

Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring will give the principal address on Veterans Day, July 1, while the regular army engages in aerial and ground maneuvers in the afternoon.

WAR WOULD MOCK DEAD, FRENCH TOLD
SURENES, France, May 29.—(AP)—U. S. Ambassador William C. Bullitt, speaking in a Memorial Day service in the American soldiers' cemetery in Surenes, warned today that "war in Europe would be the ultimate defeat of all hopes for which they were dying."

"We cannot be sure their graves may not soon be torn by bombs and shells," he told thousands of Americans and Frenchmen gathered in the cemetery to honor the American World War dead buried here.

The Surenes ceremony was only one of a score held throughout France, a day in advance of the observance of Memorial Day in the United States.

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor attended special services in the American Cathedral of the Holy Trinity in Paris. Similar services were held in the American church in Paris and Memorial Day prayers for the American dead were said, a number of French churches.

PASTOR'S FATHER, S. D. SCOTT, DIES

Atlanta Leagues for Services in Virginia.

S. D. Scott, 64, of Marion, Va., father of the Rev. I. Wiley Scott, pastor of the First Methodist church, died of a heart attack at his home yesterday afternoon, friends and relatives here learned last night.

Mr. Scott was a native of Marion and lived on a farm there all his life. He had been a visitor with his son here. The Rev. Scott left last night for Virginia.

Surviving, besides the Atlanta son, are four other sons, Robert, George and S. D. Scott Jr., all of Marion, and Randolph Wells, of Raleigh, N. C., and two daughters, Miss Marigold Scott, of Marion, and Miss Katherine Scott, of Richmond.

Funeral services and burial will be held in Marion tomorrow.

STATE DEATHS

MRS. JOHN W. SHERROD.
MIDVILLE, Ga., May 29.—Mrs. John W. Sherrod, 58, this section's oldest citizen, died Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Tom Ham, three miles from here in Burke county. Where she has been in declining health several years, she was not confined to her bed until two weeks ago. A native of Emanuel county, she was before her marriage Mrs. Ellen Martin. She was a member of the Shadron Baptist church. Survivors include three other daughters, Mrs. O. E. Oglesby, of Savannah; Mrs. W. B. Brinson, of Midville; and Mrs. Thomas Green, of Perkins, and one son, Joseph Sherrod, of Midville. Burial was conducted Thursday by Rev. E. L. Harris, and burial was in the Shadron Baptist church cemetery, near Midville.

MOUNT VERNON, Ga., May 29.
Henry Farrow, well known resident of Tarrytown, died Friday after a brief illness. He was 78 years of age. He was a member of the Tarrytown Baptist church. He was a native of Tarrytown and had lived in Tarrytown since 1915. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Helen Farrow, and several children.

MRS. ROBERT A. SCANDRETT.
BUTLER, Ga., May 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Jennie Wallace Scandrett, 74, widow of the late Robert A. Scandrett, died yesterday after a short illness. She had been active in church and social work. Surviving are one son, Colonel R. P. Wallace, and four daughters, Mrs. Helen Dunwoody, of Butler, Ben Persons, both of Butler, and Mrs. Fred Saunders, of Hawkinsville.

FORMER DIPLOMAT HELD ON DOPE CHARGE

GENEVA, May 29.—(AP)—Arrest of a former Peruvian diplomat, wanted by American authorities and the police of many nations as a key man in a huge international narcotics smuggling ring, was disclosed today by Harry J. Anslinger, United States narcotics commissioner.

Anslinger declared the ex-diplomat, Carlos Fernandez Bacula, was arrested Saturday by Zurich police.

Will Ga. Be Gaga Over Baba? She'll Fly Here

Princess Baba, daughter of the white Rajah of Sarawak, Borneo, who will fly to Atlanta Wednesday with her wrestler-husband, Bob Gregory.

RIVERS TO GREET BORNEO PRINCESS

Baba and Her Wrestler Arrive Wednesday.

Governor Rivers and Mayor Hartsfield are expected to greet Princess Baba, daughter of the white rajah of Sarawak, Borneo, and her wrestler-husband, Bob Gregory, when the couple arrive here by plane Wednesday morning.

The Princess and her husband, whose marriage stirred London society, are making a leisurely tour to Hollywood. Gregory will wrestle here Wednesday night.

The couple will fly here from New York in the plane of L. C. Warren. Princess Baba, one of Europe's best-dressed women, recently said she "hopes her husband gives up wrestling and goes into movies."

Gregory has been signed for a Hollywood film.

CAR DROPS 35 FEET INTO CREEK; 3 HURT

Auto Runs Off Highway North of Roswell, and Overturns.

Three persons were injured, one seriously, when the car in which they were riding ran off the highway and plunged 35 feet down an embankment, overturning in Hogwallow creek, about two and one-half miles north of Roswell at about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Clarence Butell, 42, of Route 1, Dunwoody, Ga., the most seriously injured, was admitted to Grady hospital for a fractured neck and severe head lacerations. The others injured were admitted to Crawford W. Long Memorial hospital, in "fair" condition. They were John D. Dodd, 37, of an Atlanta hotel, advertising solicitor for the constitution, and Mrs. Inez M. Schwartz, of 1052 Rosedale road.

Dodd suffered a fractured pelvis and a possible fractured spine. Mrs. Schwartz suffered a fractured pelvis and fractured ankle. George Nichols, a truck farmer who operates a roadside stand at the top of the hill, heard the crash. He ran to the creek and removed the injured from the overturned car.

Patrolmen H. H. Green and H. W. Wood, of Fulton county police, took the injured to hospitals. They reported the automobile, proceeding toward Atlanta, was going down a hill approaching a bridge over the creek, and failed to "make" the bridge.

The accident occurred on Route No. 1. It was not learned who was driving. Water in the creek was only a few inches deep.
